RUSS REJECT PEACE SCORN KAISER'S PLAN TO END WAR

CHICAGO GIRL SELECTED AS $10,000 MAID

Mr. and Mrs. Pankhurst
Want Her, but Will Leave
Decision to Official.

HE CONSIDERS SIX.

Pankhurst Farm, Ill., Aug. 8.—(Special.)—Uncle Jimmy Pankhurst and Aunt Louisa have made up their minds as to the girl they want for housekeeper. It is a Chicago girl, and she is a very pretty one. She can cook and she can sew. She is an orphan.

Official to Decide.
They admitted that tonight. However, they say they are going to leave the final decision as to whether or not she will come to Mark L. Crawford, United States immigration inspector, who has taken such a keen interest in their search of more than a year.

Of the thousands of letters which are piled high on the melodeon, the churn, the sewing machine, the whatnot, and almost every bit of furniture that will hold them, Uncle Jimmy and Aunt Louisa have picked out six.

The $10,000 dollar housekeeper probably will be one of these six. From one letter and a picture Uncle Jimmy and Aunt Louisa have expressed a preference for the particular Chicago orphan girl.

They think she will love them because she has no one else to love. And they think they will love her because she is so fresh and pretty and writes such a frank letter.

Seems to Want Home.
She just seems to want a home like the old farmhouse far more than she does the $10,000.

And that's the trouble with so many of the other letters. The $10,000 appears to be the main object of the writers. Hard as they may try to conceal it, it sticks out.

The other five entries appear to be frank in their desire to have a home. That's one reason why they are still in the running.

Mr. Crawford came down from Chicago on Friday and stayed over Sunday on the farm. He seemed to agree with Mr. and Mrs. Pankhurst on the six best letters in the combination.

And he agreed to go back to Chicago and look over the six in person. He probably will have interviews with them in the next week and see if they have anything on the orphan girl.

Then he'll probably bring the one or two who look best to him out of the six, down here for a personal interview.

AMERICANS KILL SIX MEXICANS

Officer Pat Lally
Swears Florence
Stuck Him in Back

Wine Party at Berghoff
Involves the Original
Mrs. Kirkpatrick.

Mrs. Florence Kirkpatrick, who lately won publicity for her plucky struggle to keep her little Sheridan road home together on a pittance of $500 a month, will have to appear in one of those horrid police courts again today.

It is not her runaway motor which has got Mrs. Kirkpatrick into trouble this time, but her haplin. Policeman Patrick Lally of the Central station accuses the "500 beauty" of having buried the first few inches of the haplin in her lumbar vertebrae.

Battle of the Waiters.
Lally was one of two policemen called to the Berghoff restaurant at 17 West Adams street early yesterday morning. They found two men struggling with a group of waiters. Two women hovered about the suburban battleground cheering the efforts of their escorts.

With the advent of the policeman Andrew Kilne, manager of the restaurant, extricated himself from the field of action. "Wine party," he panted. "All right. Won't pay check."

Retreat Is Sounded.
The spirit of battle died in the "wine party" champions as they sighted the blue coats and brass buttons of the enemy's reinforcements. They suspended hostilities abruptly.

"Why don't you pay?" asked Policeman Terrence McGrath, Lally's partner. "Going to," said one of the late combatants, reaching for his wallet.

Four Farlers Passed.
The check was paid in due course, with no further resistance, and the "wine party" proceeded to the street, followed by the policemen. A motor car was waiting. One of the men and one of the women climbed into it. The other man dallied to remonstrate with Lally. He spoke forcefully—so picturesquely that women in the crowd of spectators retired beyond earshot.

On the Road to Jail.
LALLY guesses there's nothing to do but look you up. Come on, now. Lally led the way to the patrol box at the corner. The crowd followed and formed again in a circle about policemen and prisoner.

Lally "pulled" the box and sent a call for the patrol wagon. He had just hung up the receiver when the woman companion of his prisoner burst through the crowd. Her hat fell from her head as she advanced, for the jeweled pin which had held it secure was in her hand, ready for action.

Woman's Weapon Flashes.
The action followed before Lally could turn to defend himself. There was a sparkle of fire as the ring laden hand holding the hatpin flashed back and jabbed forward.

"She's stabbed me!" yelled Lally. "Grab her!"

Detective Sergeants Garrett Coan and James O'Brien of the first precinct broke through the crowd just in time to block the woman's escape. She was still holding the hatpin, its point coated with crimson, as they seized her.

Picnic on Ships Turns to Battle; War Talk Cause

New York, Aug. 8.—(Special.)—Fraternizing, neutrality, and other abstract virtues were smashed to splinters on the Hudson this afternoon when the Newark Atlantic of Eagles, on excursion bent, fell into two hostile camps of Italian and German sympathizers, and changed the steamer Isabella and the barge Empire, which it was towing, into a pair of floating battlefields.

Twelve hundred members of the organization forgot the bonds of their fraternal brotherhood and mixed things in a gorgeous fight, in the course of which one man, John Jenkins of Newark, fell overboard and was drowned, a woman fell overboard and was rescued, and another woman gave birth to a child in the height of the battle.

Diplomatic Relations Ended.
Peace reigned in the Empire's bosom as the Isabella and the barge Empire left Newark. Presently bear reigned on the European war. The argument ceased being vocal shortly, and all diplomatic relations were severed when one member of the party, a bald headed eagle of German extraction, smote his neighbor with a camp stool.

The Italians and Germans were Eagles no longer after that act. They became Bersaglieri and Uhlans.

Barge Goes Into Action.
The Isabella frothed warfare on all decks. The barge in the rear quickly mobilized its forces and went into action. Fist and foot, camp chair, and bottle, the combatants dashed. The men wrestled together, men fought each other toe to toe, men hammered each other with whatever weapons were within reach.

A flying bottle hit John Jenkins and knocked him overboard. He sank immediately. A moment later a woman on the Empire fell into the water. A few persons who were on the outskirts of the riot pulled her out.

Intervention Not Wanted.
The captain of the Isabella and the crews of the steamer and the barge tried at first to separate the combatants, but all outsiders were discouraged by immediate attention from both of the warring parties.

Two Girls Drowned in Paw Paw Lake; Then a Mystery

Three drownings, each with an element of mystery attached, marred the outings of Chicagoans yesterday at nearby summer resorts.

Those drowned at Paw Paw Lake were Miss Grace Ramoser, daughter of William M. Ramoser of Chicago, and Miss Julia Dunlevy. The two were paddling a canoe in front of the Mapewood resort at the east end of the lake between Chicago and Waterville, when the craft upset.

Sink in Death Embrace.
As both were thrown into the water they clutched frantically at each other, hindering their own chances of being rescued. They sank in a death embrace.

Miss Ramoser was a sister of Mrs. L. J. Dwan, wife of the proprietor of the Dwan Hotel in Benton Harbor. She was 21 years old.

An element of mystery was injected into the double tragedy when Joseph Santley, the actor, received the following telegram from Mrs. Dwan:

"My dear sister Grace was drowned at Paw Paw lake today. Will you kindly notify Mrs. Nann. I do not know her address."

Supposed Eastland Hero Passes Lot of Bad Checks

Winona, Minn., Aug. 8.—(Special.)—Victimized by a stranger feigning illness which he said was due to experiences in the Eastland disaster at Chicago, Winona learned today that C. H. Grant left behind a number of worthless checks.

Grant fell while walking on the streets last Monday.

Taken to the hospital, doctors believed his story that the strain of the Chicago steamship horror had developed acute heart trouble. He said he was a passenger on the boat and had rescued seventeen people before he himself was rescued.

He recovered rapidly and after he had gone checks given him nurse and the hospital were returned by a Chicago bank marked no funds. The police today were advised by the authorities at Wyandotte, Mich., that the same man had operated there.

ONE PERISHES AT GARY.
Gary, Ind., Aug. 8.—(Special.)—Oswald Lindgren, 21 years old, of Pullman, is believed to have been drowned at Miller's Beach this afternoon.

TWO RANCHERS AND 3 SOLDIERS ARE WOUNDED

Battle Staged North of Brownsville; Outlaw
Band Is Routed.

Hartlingen, Tex., Aug. 8.—Five American ranchmen were wounded, two of them seriously, and six Mexican outlaws were reported killed and wounded tonight in a fight between United States troops, Texas rangers, and American ranchmen and a band of Mexican bandits at Norias ranch, ten miles north of Lyford in Cameron county.

Of the five Americans injured three were United States troopers and two civilians.

Ranch House Defended.
The outlaws, estimated to number between thirty and fifty, attacked the Norias ranch house shortly before dark. Fourteen ranchmen barricaded themselves in the house and defended the place until 10 o'clock, when the message said, the Mexicans withdrew temporarily.

Shortly after the bandits had withdrawn sixteen Texas rangers and armed civilians arrived.

At 10:30 o'clock, the report says, the Mexicans returned, unaware that reinforcements had arrived.

They again charged the house and were met with a volley of shots from the rangers and several of the Mexicans were killed. The outlaws retreated into the darkness.

Americans Are Reinforced.
A special train left Hartlingen shortly before 10 o'clock tonight carrying thirty-five United States soldiers and twelve armed civilians to reinforce the Americans on the Norias ranch.

A report over railroad telegraph wires at midnight said the Mexicans were retreating southward from Norias. Passenger trains in that vicinity have been stopped until daylight because it was feared the outlaws would attempt to wreck them.

Owing to the odds against the Americans in numbers, it was said the defenders of Norias ranch would not attempt to follow the bandits until other reinforcements arrived.

Rush U. S. Cavalry to Scene.
Brownsville, Tex., Aug. 8.—Troop B, Third United States Cavalry, received orders tonight to leave early in the morning for Norias ranch. It was reported here that the number of Mexicans in the attacking force was 200. This could not be confirmed.

Writer Depicts Last Day Scenes as Warsaw Falls

Russians Retire Fighting and Put Blame on Lack of Supplies.

(By Cable to The Chicago Tribune.)
LONDON, Aug. 8.—The correspondent of the Times, who was in Warsaw up to the moment of its evacuation by the Russians, sends a dispatch describing the hours that preceded the fall of the city. The dispatch, dated Warsaw, Aug. 4, 8 p. m., says:

"The Germans are drawing tighter and the fall of the city is a matter of a few hours. Standing on a new bridge, one can see great German shells and volcanic fumes, while the heavy reverberations shake the city."

"Across the Vistula hangs our observation balloon, while the sky is dotted with German aeroplanes, darting hither and thither amid smoke puffs of bursting shrapnel from our guns. I counted fourteen shells aimed at one aeroplane."

Many Bombs from Aerials.
"From the roofs of the Hotel Bristol is visible the smoke of the burning buildings in the suburbs which have been fired by the German artillery. The city is deserted by all but the Poles who intend to remain, and the evacuation except for the last of the infantry and guns, seems to be practically completed. The last train departed for Petrograd yesterday and the last to Dnest-Litovsk goes tonight."

"In the meantime the German aeroplanes continue their destruction of lives and property. On Monday many bombs were dropped and it is reported that twenty-five persons were killed. One bomb fell between the Hotel de l'Europe and the new church, and others in all quarters of the city."

"All the bridges are mined. While I was crossing a bridge this afternoon four bombs fell on Praga, the suburb on the eastern bank of the river, making terrific detonations and sending the people flying in every direction."

Retire in Good Order.
"The copper of the telephone and telegraph system and the trolley wires are being taken down and for those who have been here watching the fate of Warsaw for many months, the spectacle of the preparations to abandon it is depressing."

"Early today I visited the corps defending our left flank in the vicinity of Garwolin, between Warsaw and Ivangorod, and found them holding the Germans satisfactorily, while our corps in the center was being evacuated."

"I am unable to express an opinion as to the movements of the armies north and south of here, as we have already cut all communications, but I believe the Germans have lost already any chance they may have had of inflicting any disaster on the Warsaw army unless one of its neighbors gives way prematurely."

Troops Are Not Dismounted.
"In spite of the fact that shells are bursting in the outskirts of the town, the remainder of the evacuation, under the auspices of the Russian commanders, is moving as quietly as on the first day of the civil evacuation two weeks ago. The barren road is filled with tired and dusty troops coming back from their positions, and there is nothing to indicate any feeling of hopelessness, though disappointment is written on every face."

"With munitions," a high officer said, "we could always beat the Germans." Another said, "No, we don't want peace. When we have plenty of shells we will take Warsaw back again. We cannot leave it in the hands of the Germans."

BERLIN OFFER TURNED DOWN IN PETROGRAD

Russia Will Not Desert
Allies But Continue Struggle.

DANISH KING MEDIARY.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—Reuter's correspondent at Petrograd transmits the following:

"The Bourse Gazette learns from an unimpeachable source that the emperor of Germany made an offer of peace to Russia, last week through the king of Denmark. The answer sent to the king stated that the question of peace negotiations could not be raised at the present time."

There is no official confirmation of this report.

Discussed in Petrograd.
The report that Germany had made peace proposals to Russia became known in official circles in Petrograd several days ago, and was freely discussed in the lobbies of the duma, according to the Vechernee Vremya, says a dispatch from the Russian capital.

"We learn on good authority," says the newspaper, "that Germany through Denmark proposed to Russia a separate peace, Russia to receive Galicia, while Germany would retain the western district of Poland. A representative of the foreign office categorically denied that there was the remotest possibility of any peace negotiations. In the lobbies of the duma the proposal was dismissed as unworthy of serious consideration."

No Surprise to London.
Germany's reported offer is regarded as possible here that it excites no surprise. Russia's prompt refusal is viewed as a matter of course. Her pledged word not to conclude peace separately from the allies is trusted implicitly, and her attitude is believed here to be faithfully expressed by the Novo Vremya, which says: "Russia does not desire peace, but victory. As long as victory has not been attained, peace is impossible. Furthermore, Russia signed an agreement with the allies not to make peace separately. Treaties to which Russia's signature is attached are not like German 'scrap of paper.' Nothing more need be said."

More Determined Than Ever.
All dispatches from Russia, concur not only with the government but show that the people are strengthened by events such as the fall of Warsaw in the determination to continue the struggle.

M. Ribouchinsky, a prominent Moscow millionaire, is quoted as saying while tending a congress of committees organizing Russian industry for military purposes: "We shall retire, if necessary, as far as the Ural, but we shall fight to the last man and shall gain victory." This declaration crystallizes the reports of several correspondents.

Sought to Force Desertion.
The Telegraph, discussing the Russian policy, says: "Behind the colossal Austro-German efforts of the last hundred days, there has been one supreme object. It was the object of forcing Russia to abandon the allies. The success of that attempt would rebound in triumph and would radically alter the elements of the large calculation upon which we have based our confidence."

"Adversity has only strengthened Russia's determination to fight on until the powerful bully who wants to place Europe under his heel is overthrown. Germany began the war at her pleasure. She cannot end it at her pleasure. The czar's reply to the kaiser makes that plain to the world."

Aim of the Kaiser.
Replying to congratulations from the king of Wurtemberg on the fall of Warsaw, Emperor William, according to a press dispatch received here, telegraphed the following: "Many hearty thanks for your congratulations. We can see in the fall of Warsaw a significant step on the road upon which the Almighty by his grace has led us hitherto. Relying on him, our glorious troops will continue to fight as an honorable peace."

CLINTON FARMER MISSING; LEFT HOME WITH $25,000.

A. A. Reed's Relative Fear He May Have Met Foul Play on Way to Springfield.

Clinton, Ill., Aug. 8.—(Special.)—A. A. Reed, a land owner here, is missing. He left five days ago in his auto for Springfield, Ill. He had $25,000 in cash with him and is thought to have met foul play. Reed did not return Tuesday night, so he had planned, efforts of his family and the county authorities to learn his whereabouts have failed. Not only Reed but his auto have disappeared.

Reed was known to nearly every merchant along the road between Clinton and Springfield, a distance of only forty miles, but no one can be found who saw him on the day he vanished.

TRY TO HEM IN SLAVS.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—The fate of the Russian army that have retired from Warsaw still hangs in the balance. The Teutons continue to make progress in all directions in their efforts to cut off the retreat of the Slavs from the Polish salient.

The Germans have occupied Serech and captured the fortress of Zargje at the confluence of the Bug and Narw rivers, and have crossed the Bug north of Serech and south of Wysskow. This means that they are within five or six miles of the Warsaw-Petrograd railway, one of the three important Russian lines of retreat. If this line should be cut before the Russian troops have escaped it would mean the envelopment and capture of considerable Slav forces.

Germans Cross the Vistula.

The size of the Russian force thus menaced is the all important factor. It is argued that the Slav army which for several days has kept the Germans from crossing the Vistula from Warsaw to its suburb, Praga, could not have been small. But the German report that the Teutons have gained the east bank of the Vistula near Warsaw would seem to indicate that the Russian troops on this line have been greatly decreased, large numbers of them moving eastward over the Warsaw-Petrograd railway and thus escaping the impending closing of the German trap.

Further north other German forces rapidly are approaching the Loma-Ostrow-Wyszkow road, which runs northeast from Warsaw to Loma, seventy miles from the Polish capital.

Germans Advance on Forts.

Still further north the Germans are making for attacks on the fortresses of Osovetz and Kovno, which are among the obstacles they must overcome in order to reach the railway running from Warsaw through Vilna and Dvinsk to Petrograd.

Southeast of Warsaw, Gen. Woychak is advancing eastward, but Field Marshal von Mackensen is being stubbornly resisted and apparently is making at the best slow progress against strong Russian rear guard actions. On several sectors Petrograd asserts that the Teutons have been held or driven back, and that at one place on the left bank of the Wisla, in southern Poland—in the course of a counter attack—some hundreds of prisoners were captured.

Germans Repulsed Near Riga.

Near Riga, up on the Baltic, the other end of the long front and the northern limit of the German advance, the Teutons menace the Russian armies. Petrograd says that the Germans have been dislodged from positions between the Dvina, Ekau and As rivers. The German official communication makes no reference to the fighting in this region.

Meanwhile the fate of Novo Georgievsk.

The Vistula fortress north of Warsaw, which the Russians have insisted can withstand a four months' siege, is none too sure. Berlin advises that the Teutons of the ten forts making up the city's defense has fallen, which means that only seven of them remain. Novo Georgievsk, while in Russian hands, would prevent the Vistula being used as a highway for the transportation of German supplies.

Campaign Developing Slowly.

On the whole, the daring scheme mapped out by the Germans as a grand sequel to the capture of Warsaw—the destruction of the Russian army—seems to be unfolding itself slowly, as must be the case from its magnitude.

Speculation still is rife as to whether

Grand Duke Nicholas will be able to bring his armies intact to his newly chosen line of defense. It is felt by the military observers, however, that with the railway in his control and with his men fighting tenaciously in rearward action a majority of the grand duke's soldiers will reach their objective.

German Official Statement.

BERLIN, Aug. 8.—Further progress for the Austro-German forces which are attempting to cut off the retreat of the Russians was announced today by the German official statement. The statement says that Serech, at the mouth of the Bug, north of Warsaw, has been occupied; forts near Novo Georgievsk have been captured; the Germans have occupied the east bank of the Vistula near Warsaw, and to the south the Russians are being driven back by Field Marshal von Mackensen. The statement follows:

"German troops on the Narw are approaching the Loma-Ostrow-Wyszkow road. At some points the enemy offered stubborn resistance.

"South of Wysskow the Bug has been reached. Serech, at the mouth of the Bug, has been occupied. Near Novo Georgievsk our siege troops took the forts at Zargje.

"Under the pressure of troops under

Field Marshal von Mackensen the Russians are retreating in an easterly direction."

Russian Official Statement.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 8.—The following official statement was issued tonight at the headquarters of the Russian general staff:

"In the direction of Riga we dislodged

the enemy from the region between the Dvina, the Ekau, and the lower course of the As. Fighting continues as before without any essential change on the roads east of Poneviesch.

"Enemy attacks on Kovno and Oso-

vetz, which were repulsed on Friday, were not renewed yesterday. The enemy continues to deliver vigorous attacks from the Narw line along the whole front, great forces being directed against the Loma-Ostrow sector.

"Quiet on Warsaw Front.

"On the right bank of the Vistula yesterday passed without any engagements of importance.

"On the left bank of the Wisla there have been obstinate rear guard actions. In the course of counter attacks we captured some hundreds of prisoners. Between the Wisla and the Bug there has been no essential change.

"On the left bank of the Bug between

Tourla and Loma we executed pressure successfully on the enemy's advance guards along a wide front.

"There has been intermittent artillery

fighting at some points on the upper Bug, the Roka Lips, and the Dniester."

SLAV AMMUNITION RUINED.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—Thousands of cases of ammunition of every kind, when opened at the front, were found to contain rubbish," says the Daily Mail in an account of the conditions under which the Russian army has been fighting.

"This situation is popularly

ascribed to the work of German agents in Russian munition factories."

Petrograd is full of wounded, the Daily

Mail asserts, and the Russian casualties are immediately estimated at 3,000,000 up to the middle of July, killed, wounded, and prisoners. The paper says, however, that this estimate seemed grosserwork, as the military authorities themselves do not know the real total.

Notwithstanding the tremendous losses the Russian people are cheerful and confident, for they believe Germany's final collapse is near.

CAN'T STARVE OUT GERMANY, SAYS H. J. REILLY

"Tribune" Writer Tells Precautions Taken Which Have Insured Plenty of Food.

BY HENRY J. REILLY.

(War Correspondent of The Tribune.)

[Copyright, 1918, By The Chicago Tribune.] BERLIN, July 15.—From the beginning of the war the German government foresaw the danger of there being a shortage in food supply for men and animals unless the matter were carefully considered.

Without waiting for the time when such shortage would commence, steps were immediately taken to control the whole question of supply, distribution, and consumption of food. The various state governments and also the imperial government interested themselves in this matter.

Probably the most important question was that of having sufficient grain for bread. Prussia raised enough grain not only to feed her own people, but also to aid considerably in the feeding of the people of the smaller federal states. Bavaria, Mecklenburg, and Brunswick also raise not only enough for their own people, but also have a surplus.

Will Have Grain Surplus.

Under the existing war regulations governing the consumption of bread, the amount allowed the population is considerably under the smallest German harvest for a considerable number of years. The harvest of 1914 was somewhat under the average, but in spite of this fact it can now be seen that by the middle of August, when this year's harvest will be ready, Germany will have a surplus of 600,000 tons of grain.

For some weeks a short while back there was a dry spell, which caused a little anxiety on the part of some farmers. Since then it has rained enough to insure an average crop. The crops suffered only where the soil is sandy. Even in these places the damage amounts to comparatively little.

Because of the dry weather there was a fear that there might be too much rain at harvest time, and as a consequence a good deal of grain spoiled. With the usual German foresight the government arranged places all over the country in which the grain, if harvested while wet, could be properly dried and thus prevented from rotting.

Other Precautions Taken.

Some time back there was a fear that the supply of potatoes and pork would not be sufficient to feed the people. For this reason orders were given that the pigs would be slaughtered and the meat preserved. This, of course, would prevent the continued raising of hogs, which furnished a large part of the meat supply of the German people.

However, it has been found that the potato supply is so ample that the people cannot begin to consume it. Not only are all the ordinary plants for drying potatoes busy day and night, but also it has been necessary to build a great many new ones to take care of the enormous surplus.

In some parts of Germany potatoes have been so plentiful that they have been given away for nothing. For this reason the raising of pigs has again been permitted. At the present rate of increase the number of pigs in the country will soon reach its normal figure.

Waste Land Improved.

Throughout Germany the waste land has been improved and vast tracts reclaimed. All these have been planted with cereals and fodder and will yield a satisfactory crop. Germany's hundreds of thousands of prisoners of war have aided materially in this work.

The considerable districts occupied by the German army in Belgium, France, Poland, and Courland have yielded large quantities of food supplies. In fact, practically all the German troops in these districts have been fed on the supply found there. All the agricultural soil in these districts has been cultivated to the limit.

Where necessary the army has supplied horses to do the work. A considerable number of motor plows are also used. Everywhere in Germany the harvesting machines are working day and night to meet the demand for plows.

Conditions everywhere are such as amply to justify the statement of Baron von Schorlemmer, the Prussian minister of agriculture, that the hope to starve Germany is futile.

How People Aid Government.

The earnestness with which the people of Germany support their government is well illustrated by the work of the National War Service Society of German Women. This society has set out appeals to the children asking them in simple language not to waste bread, and explaining why this is a patriotic duty.

They have got out appeals to housewives telling of the food supplies which are primarily needed for the army, and therefore should be sparingly used. They also tell them substitutes of various kinds which may be used for these articles. Accompanying these appeals are recipes showing ways of making up good and cheap dinners for various numbers of people.

The activities of this society are not limited to this. In general, the object of the society is to cooperate with the city and state governments to help people to economize, to see that no one goes hungry, and to find work for the unemployed. Their organization is quite complete, and so careful that it is practically impossible for any dishonest person to take advantage of them.

RAID DICK HYLAND'S PLACE.

Louisiana State Troops Close Famous Gambling Resort—New Orleans Business Men Caught.

New Orleans, La., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Dick Hyland's place, the most celebrated gambling resort in the south, is closed tonight; 200 gamblers, or keepers, are in jail or on their way to jail. The Washington artillery army is every conceivable kind of gambling device.

All of this followed a raid made by state troops early this morning. The soldiers were led by Senator G. W. W. private secretary to Gov. Hall. The chief executive himself witnessed the raid.

Many of those caught are well known in business circles here. Every pressure is being brought to bear to suppress the raid.

Battle Front in the Vicinity of Verdun; Germans Trying to Pierce French Lines.

The German offensive to the northwest and to the southeast of Verdun has assumed a violent nature, while great Krupp howitzers are pouring a rain of steel into the outer works of the fortified city.

For several days the Kaiser's forces under the crown prince have been fighting bitterly in the Argonne forest in an effort to drive through the French battle line. To some extent they have been successful. Several trenches have been won.

In their attempted advance in the Vosges mountains, however, the Germans have been beaten down with heavy losses.

This latest offensive against Verdun began with the fall of Warsaw in the east, and it is believed that thousands of Germans from the Russian front have been added to the crown prince's army.

AMERICANS KILL SIX MEXICANS

Two Ranchers and Three Troopers Wounded in Battle with Outlaw Band.

sumed in New York City next Wednesday.

Secretary Lansing made this announcement tonight upon his return from New York, where he conferred with Secretary McAdoo early in the day. Mexican affairs and the cooperative effort of the United States and Latin-American republics to end the factional strife were discussed generally.

"We talked of the Mexican situation," Secretary Lansing said, "but we did not consider any financial plan for supporting a Mexican government. The principal purpose of my visit to New York was to talk with Mr. McAdoo concerning financial arrangements for the Pan-American financial congress to be held at Boston, Mass., in September. There is considerable preliminary work to be done in connection with that."

Questions confronting conference. Three big questions confront the conference in the consideration of the Mexican problem when they meet in New York. The first is the question of disarmament; the second is the establishment of the provisional government not only in Mexico City but throughout the republic; the third is the financing of the republic, both its government and its business men.

Outside of the actual organization of the new provisional government, it is admitted that the great problem confronting the conference is the financing of the country. In all likelihood, as soon as the plan for governing Mexico is worked out, leading financiers of this country will be called into conference on the situation.

In addition to calling upon these men the great foreign interests, including the Coudray and Standard Oil petroleum groups, the Guggenheim mining syndicate, and the various Chicago packers, will be asked to lend material aid.

Await Gen. Scott's Arrival.

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 8.—Gen. Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff of the United States army, bearing a state department commission to the Villa faction, is due to arrive here at 2:45 tomorrow afternoon.

Conferences between Gen. Scott, George Coudray, special agent of the state department, and Gen. Francisco Villa are to be arranged later in the day.

Pending Scott's arrival with what is believed to be representations upon the plan of peace based on the plan of the Pan-American conference, the Villa government has stayed the actual taking over of foreign merchandise at Chihuahua City.

The imports seized in the warehouse and freight yard at Juarez, and which have been routed south to the Villa government, it is said, would be held there for further orders.

Representatives of governments whose nationals are affected by confiscations have been advised that only those proven guilty of extortion would lose their goods.

PEACE PARTY FAVOR.

Claim Recapture of Portion of Disputed Territory on Gallipoli.

AMSTERDAM, via London, Aug. 8.—A land and sea attack on the Turkish positions on Gallipoli peninsula is announced in an official communication issued at Constantinople, as received here today.

The Turkish war office admits the loss of ground, but asserts that in another engagement the Turks captured trenches from the allies. The text of the report, whose date of issue is not given in the Constantinople dispatch, follows:

"Yesterday evening on the Dardanelles front in the region of Avli Burnu, our left wing captured some trenches from the enemy by a surprising attack and prevented him from bringing up reinforcements."

"In the afternoon, the enemy, after long and violent artillery preparation from land and sea, advanced and made a number of attacks against the trenches on our left wing, penetrating a portion of them. Toward evening we recaptured the greater part of the lost ground."

"On the same day, near Seddul Bahr, we repulsed the enemy, who attacked our trenches on our right wing south of Saghadere, after long preparation by artillery and infantry fire."

"In the Caucasus we continue a vigorous pursuit of the enemy on our right wing. The enemy evacuated his positions near Alashgerd and retreated at Kousadgerd."

Friction Among Allies Reported.

BERLIN, Aug. 8.—[By wireless to Saraville.]—The following news items were given out today for publication by the Overseas News Agency:

"Telegrams from Athens give reports of increasing friction between French and British officers on Gallipoli peninsula. It has been necessary to forbid them to converse with each other. The French accuse the British of having lost courage on account of their heavy losses."

"The central railway station at Belgrade was reduced to ashes by the latest attack of Austrian aviators. Shipyards and barracks also were fired."

Greece Must Remain Neutral.

"Newspapers at Athens say that King Constantine has determined personally to open the new session of parliament with a speech emphasizing that it is necessary for Greece to preserve unconditional neutrality during the war, as the only guarantee of the country's welfare."

"The Lokal Anzeiger prints a letter dated Hoboken, Belgium, July 14, saying that when the Dutch steamship Rotterdam was detained by the British admiralty in June it was compelled on several occasions to make trips at night between Dover and Calais, apparently in the hope that it would be mistaken for a British troop ship and torpedoed by a German submarine."

GERMANS HURLED BACK IN VOSGES; GAIN IN ARGONNE

French Admit Crown Prince's Army Wins Foothold Northwest of Verdun Fortress.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Aug. 8.—The Germans have increased their attempts to penetrate the French lines in the Argonne, to the northwest of Verdun, and in the Vosges mountains north and northwest of St. Die. Fighting of extreme violence has developed in consequence of the vicious assaults by the armies under command of the crown prince.

German Attacks Repulsed.

The official announcement from the French war office says these attacks have been repulsed, but concedes that minor advantages have been gained by the Germans in the Argonne forest.

The Germans continue to hammer away at the outer works of Verdun, but to the present time have done little damage.

The first mention for several days by Berlin of fighting in these two theaters of the war was made today. One sentence sufficed to tell of the clashes. It reads:

"French counter attacks against the trench taken from the French in the western Argonne on Friday were repulsed. Fighting in the Vosges, north of Muenster, was renewed Saturday afternoon. The night, however, was quiet."

French War Report.

The French official communication covering the fighting follows:

"In the region of Argonne there were continual combats with hand grenades around Souchez."

"The Argonne forest last yesterday the Germans succeeded in penetrating one of our positions in a salient in the western part of the forest of Fontaine Houyette. They were driven back by a counter attack and could maintain themselves only in a lookout post in advance of our first line."

"During the night the Germans attacked our positions in the sector of La Fille Morte. They obtained a footing in Fille Morte, but were ejected immediately except on a front of thirty yards."

Vosges Attacks Beaten Down.

"In the Vosges an attack delivered by the Germans at the end of the afternoon attained a character of extreme violence. It was directed against our positions at Linkeopel and Schratmannelle and the neck of land which separates these two heights."

"Our assailants were repulsed completely and suffered heavy losses. Before the portion of the front held by only one of our companies the corpses of more than 100 Germans remained in the network of our entanglements."

AUSTRIANS REPULSE ATTACK OF STRONG ITALIAN FORCE.

Troops Retreat Before Heavy Fire Shouting 'Long Live Italy' and 'Down with Austria.'

VIENNA, Aug. 8.—The following report on the operations on the Italian war front was issued today:

"After renewed heavy artillery preparations, strong Italian infantry forces attacked the border plateau in the district of Polazzo and Vermigliano. This attack, as in the case of all former attacks directed against Monte Seibusa, was repulsed."

"In Carinthia and Tyrol there were only artillery combats. From Friday evening to Saturday night Italian infantry, with two batteries, advanced into Tyrol across Forcella di Montozzo, northwest of Pejo."

"An attack by these forces early in the morning of Saturday failed through the fire of our artillery and infantry. Vigorously shouting 'Long live Italy' and 'Down with Austria' the Italians' hastily retreated."

"FATHER OF SHRINE" DEAD.

George F. Loder, Imperial Potentate Emeritus, Succumbs Following Operation at Age of 72.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—George F. Loder, known throughout the country as the "father of the Mystic Shrine," died here tonight following an operation. Mr. Loder was the only Mason to hold the title of imperial potentate emeritus of North America. He was 72 years old.

NEW NOTES LINK
HEINK DAUGHTER
AND SPY SUSPECTSan Francisco Police Asked to Get Explanation from Mrs.
Guy on Millar Episode.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 2.—(Special.)—After the pursuit of a number of letters found in the possession of Richard von Millar, alleged secret agent of the German government lying at the point of death in a hospital here with a fracture of the skull, the San Francisco police today requested the authorities of San Francisco to obtain a complete statement from Mrs. Marie Guy, a daughter of the late Schumann-Miller, the opera singer.

New letters found by the authorities strengthen their belief that more than a mere acquaintanceship exists between the young German and Mrs. Guy, who was married only two months ago to J. Herbert Guy of San Francisco.

von Millar, who was injured in a leap from a moving train to escape from the sheriff who arrested him in Salt Lake City, has been positively identified by Miss Lela Weston Rusbo of Denver as the son of the Countess von Millar of Berlin.

Admits He Knows Millar.
Mrs. Guy admitted today in a telegram that she was the author of the first of the letters signed "Marie." Her message reads:

"Met Millar on train from Chicago to California. Proved pleasant company to our party on train, consisting of my sister-in-law, her mother, and myself. Before parting he requested my photograph, which explains my letter. Otherwise know nothing more about him or his connections."

The letter was addressed to "Dear Richard," and asked for a photograph of von Millar. The other letters, written partly in English and partly in German, are signed "Mirai," a German contraction of Marie, and addressed von Millar in still more endearing terms. Hand-writing experts have pronounced the handwriting the same and the subject matter of Mrs. Guy's letter and those signed "Mirai" have much in common.

Invites Millar to Her Home.
In the letter which Mrs. Guy admits having written she says:

"Have spoken to my brother Hans about Friday, but you realize that he is very busy on his ranch. He cannot get away until half-past 6 in the evening. Do you want to hire a car and drive out to Lakeside in the afternoon? I shall be there then, and perhaps we can go in at 5:30 and have dinner and go to the exposition."

"Dear Sweet Little Dick."
One letter in German has been translated as follows:

"My Dear Sweet Little Dick: Your lovely, long letter arrived this morning and has been read to me with joy. You are a good fellow. And it grieves me greatly to hear that you are feeling so badly. Do you think that you could come to San Diego on Saturday? That would be great. We could visit the exposition together with my brother Hans, and his wife and have a glorious time."

Letter Makes Her Happy.
The second letter in German and the last half in German, follows:

AID OF BALKANS
WON BY ALLIES?Serbia Finally Yields and
Will Cede Land to Bulgaria, Report in Havre.

(By Cable to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.)
HAVRE, Aug. 2.—The Tribune in an official inspired document upon the Balkan situation points out that the allies' efforts toward intervention by the Balkan states have been practically successful. The article says that, while heretofore the diplomats' persuasive arguments have been limited to the neutral governments, it is now officially announced that the allies are negotiating with Serbia.

Eventually concessions will be necessary to bring about intervention on the part of Bulgaria, and a detailed announcement will be withheld until the state of representations is definitely assured, the Tribune asserts, adding that important events are hanging fire which will end the neutrality of the Balkan states.

Delay Greek Cabinet Crisis.
A dispatch from Bucharest says that it is reported there that the Greek parliament will be opened a month hence with the object of delaying the cabinet crisis.

This step will be taken, it is explained, in view of the fact that Venizelos, the former Greek premier, will resume power only in the event that parliament denies a vote of confidence in the present cabinet.

Serbia Finally Gives In.
LONDON, Aug. 2.—There is much interest in the diplomatic negotiations in the Balkan capitals, the reports from which indicate that Serbia at last is willing to cede Macedonia to Bulgaria, but that the Greek government is now opposing any suggestion that it should return Kavala, the seaport in the village of Saloniki, to Bulgaria.

It is thought, however, that this opposition may be changed when M. Venizelos returns to power.

M. Venizelos offered Kavala to Bulgaria when he was premier simply in return for its continued neutrality while Greece went to the assistance of the allies against the Turks, but King Constantine put his foot down on the whole policy, and the political crisis which resulted in the resignation of the Venizelos cabinet followed.

ATTORNEY WILL TELL OF CRIMEMerriam Lawyer to Be the First Witness at Inquiry Today.

Attorney James McKeag will be the first witness before the city civil service commission this morning when the inquiry opens into the activities of the Merriam crime commission. Mr. McKeag was one of the counsel for the Merriam body.

Detectives Loose and Gray, detailed last fall for the investigation of the crime commission, will follow the attorney on the witness stand.

The civil service commission bases its inquiry on the reinstatement of the police force of Detectives Mulvey and Power, after evidence tending to show that they were not guilty of accepting bribes for protection from criminals.

Want to Find $25,000.
Members of the commission, supported by the mayor's opposition to Aid Merriam, are seeking to find out what became of the $25,000 spent by the council committee.

"What do you hope to accomplish by the investigation?" Chairman Percy B. Coffin was asked.

"That's pretty hard to say," he said. "For one thing, we want to vindicate the accused detectives and find out who really got the bribe paid to have been paid to them. In the next place, we want to know what the report of the commission made, his work was worth anything."

Seek Affidavits Also.
"There are countless affidavits of use in criminal prosecutions which ought to be turned over to the state's attorney. If that were done the commission's work might be worth what it cost."

With reference to the alleged bribery of the two detectives, we have information which tends to show that no money ever changed hands. One of those present at the time the incident is said to have taken place has given us information tending to show where the money went."

OKUMA DECIDES
TO KEEP OFFICEJapanese Premier, Requested to Remain by Emperor, Arranges Cabinet.

TOKIO, Aug. 2.—Premier Count Okuma has virtually decided, at the special request of the emperor, to remain in office, and has arranged the following cabinet: Premier—Count Shigenobu Okuma.

Minister of foreign affairs—Count Shigenobu Okuma.
Minister of finance—Tokutomi Takekuni.
Minister of marine—Vice Admiral Tomomasa Kato.

Minister of war—Lieut. Gen. Ichinosuke Okuma.
Minister of justice—Tokuo Oaki.
Minister of communications—Katsumi Minoura, or Viscount Manakata Sengoku.
Minister of commerce and agriculture—Hironaka Kono.

Minister of education—S. Takata.
Minister of the interior—Kitokuro Ichiki.

Will Select Permanent Minister.
The assumption by Count Okuma of the foreign ministry, following the declaration of Takaaki Kato to retain that portfolio, is to be temporary, pending the selection of a permanent minister.

It became known last night that the emperor had requested Premier Okuma to remain in office and that the premier had agreed provisionally to do so. His acceptance was contingent upon the construction of a cabinet acceptable to him, and today an announcement was made of his arrangement of the new cabinet.

HUNDREDS GO IN WITHOUT 'EM, SO
CENSOR IS MUMFair Bathes Quick to Take Advantage of Police Ruling
That "They Needn't."

Hundreds of them didn't—maybe thousands. Aid. Block had said they needn't. Mayor Thompson had concurred. Chief Healey was agreed. Maj. Funkhouser was resigned, and the police censors, trouped and otherwise, were powerless.

So, taking it all in all, why should they have?

In the first place, it had been pointed out they are insubstantial, and certainly they interfere with that freedom of movement which is essential to rapid progress both in and out of the water.

Then, too, the point of economy is to be considered. The silk ones often cost as much as $2 a pair—sometimes more—and they don't last long at that.

Immodest? Not a Bit of It.
Silk, of course, is beautiful. But what more beautiful than nature?

Immodest? Not a bit of it.
Surprising, perhaps, but never immodest. Even Maj. Funkhouser himself had admitted that in solemn convalescence.

So, as has been said, hundreds and maybe thousands of fair persons went without them. It was the same at the public beaches at Fifty-first street, Diversey boulevard, and to the north, and just so it was at the big private beaches.

Some Bring 'Em and Discard 'Em.
Some of the fair persons had read in the newspapers that they wouldn't have to and they came without them. Others, reading the official notices of the new emancipation of women at the various beaches, discarded them.

The identity of the pioneers escaped the alertest reporters, for they came with a rush. At one minute the beaches were deserted. The next moment they teemed with femininity—femininity without! They were bathing costumes either discarded or said they were caps and they were slippers. But with most of them the rest was not. You follow?

BLAMES NOAH
FOR WORLD WOEAssyriologist Says Adam and Eve Did Not Cause Fall of Man.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 2.—(Special.)—If Adam and Eve were alive today they might find basis for a suit for libel against the ages that have been laying on their shoulders the blame for the fall of man. Their chief witness would be Dr. Stephen Langdon, professor of Assyriology in Oxford university, who came to the University of Pennsylvania museum more than a year ago to pore over an ancient Sumerian tablet.

Adam and Eve did not fall, Prof. Langdon says; it was Noah. There was no apple or garden of Eden. What Noah did was to eat some of the fruit of the cassia tree in the garden of paradise, which had been forbidden him. As a punishment he was cursed with ill health and decreed an early death, instead of living 90,000 years, like his ancestors.

Tablet 5,000 Years Old.
Inasmuch as the Sumerian tablet at the university museum is believed to be nearly 5,000 years old, inscribed before the days of Abraham, Prof. Langdon holds to the theory that the Bible story of Adam's fall is a version of this ancient account.

The tablet, he says, is at least 1,000 years older than Genesis and is the oldest record of the sort in existence.

Both the Sumerian and Babylonian accounts place the deed at something like 30,000 B. C. The time between the creation and the flood is fixed at 32,000 years. Then came Noah and the cassia tree and temptation.

Beasts Then Harmless.
During the period before the flood, the Sumerian tablet relates, beasts were harmless, and there were no storms. No one said "Thou art an old woman" or "Thou art an old man." Everything was rosy and everybody happy.

Now the Creator of all inhabitants, according to the tablet, was a woman, Nintu, who made them out of clay. She tried to intervene for her creatures, but all she could save was the old king, Taurus, who is the Sumerian Noah. For him she built a ship.

PROSPERITY PUTS FEARS TO FLIGHT IN UNITED STATES

Prospects of Great Crops and Better Business Overtop the Foreign Outlook.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—The former feeling of apprehension that "something is going to happen" because of the war, has almost entirely disappeared, according to a special report submitted today by the committee on statistics and standards of the chamber of commerce of the United States. Confidence in the future, according to this committee, of which A. W. Douglas of St. Louis is chairman, has grown apace with the steady progress of the crops and the continued improvement in industrial affairs.

In the main, the thoughts and interests of the great mass of producers, whether in industrial life or in agricultural pursuits, are in their immediate local happenings, and in all constructive measures which will benefit their particular communities rather than either the great national or international problems.

There still continues, however, much concentration and caution in buying. The feeling seems to be that it is best to wait until the results of the crops are known beyond question before venturing in a more extended way, and as a consequence stocks of merchandise throughout the country continue light.

Weather Keynote of Crops.
The weather has been the keynote of the crop situation for the last six weeks. Since the first of June there have been continued excessive rains in almost all sections of the country, the exceptions being few and distinctly local. The effect on the crops has been both good and bad, but the benefit has far exceeded the damage, as serious as has been the latter in some sections.

The report goes on to say that, stimulated by the abnormal demand of the war, the first of June there have been continued excessive rains in almost all sections of the country, the exceptions being few and distinctly local. The effect on the crops has been both good and bad, but the benefit has far exceeded the damage, as serious as has been the latter in some sections.

Manufacturing Is Variable.
Manufacturing varies much, according to the articles made, though in general is quiet. Steel and iron business shows distinct improvement, with increasing orders. Business of cotton and woolen mills is fair. Those manufacturers in different sections who have orders for war contracts are exceedingly busy.

The raising of live stock is a growing industry in all sections of the country. From the south come reports of increasing numbers of animals. The greatly increased raising in all sections this year of grain and forage crops points to a large number of cattle and greater attention to stock raising and to dairy products.

The foot and mouth disease seems to have been entirely stamped out for the time being, and the campaign of sanitation and vaccination against hog cholera has had decidedly favorable results. Hogs are increasing in numbers because of abundant feed and due to diminishing ravages of hog cholera.

Her Naughty Little Hatpin Gets Her in Peck of Trouble.

MRS. FLORENCE KIRKPATRICK.

JABS. POLICEMAN WITH A HATPIN

A $500 bill and pawn tickets for thirty articles of jewelry, aggregating a value of several thousands of dollars. The man said he was Thomas Cheevers of 8129 Flournoy street. He told the desk sergeant he was a broker, but in the city directory he appears as a bookkeeper employed in room 801, 111 West Monroe street. He said he was 34 years old—the same age given by Mrs. Kirkpatrick.

Bondsman to the Rescue.
For half an hour the two were held at the station. Then Daniel P. Kinnally appeared. Kinnally, a professional bondsman, who conducts a cigar store at 62 East Eighteenth street, put up bonds for both. Mrs. Kirkpatrick and Cheevers were told to appear before Judge Prindle in the South Clark street court this morning.

Efforts to reach the two at their homes failed. The Kirkpatrick residence in Sheridan road seemed deserted. At the Flournoy street address it was said Cheevers was not at home. A young woman, who said she was Miss Minnie Cheevers, his sister, admitted she had heard something about a fracas in the Berghoff.

Sister Has Heard of Her.
"I don't know anything of the details, though," she said. "I have heard of a Mrs. Kirkpatrick, but I don't know much about her, either."
Mrs. Kirkpatrick is the estranged wife of W. E. Kirkpatrick, formerly treasurer and vice president of the Chicago Title and Trust company. She sued for separate maintenance and won alimony of $500 a month after Attorney James Ham-

Shows Greatest Change in Public Sentiment; Tavenner Foe of the Proposed Plan?

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]
Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—The administration is receiving advice from all parts of the country that there is a growing demand for an increase in national defenses.

At the same time it is fully advised that a well directed campaign against such an increase is being waged by a number of organizations, as well as members of congress, who are interested in obtaining "port" for their congressional districts.

Tavenner Against Defense?
One of the developments in the campaign for and against an increase in the defenses which has come to notice is the organized effort to compel the government to cease purchasing arms and ammunition from private manufacturers.

Congressman Tavenner of Illinois, in whose district the Rock Island arsenal is located, is directing the publicity of this campaign.

Tavenner is reported to have more than a passing interest in labor's national peace council, an organization formed by Congressman Buchanan of Chicago and former Congressman Fowler of Illinois to stop the exportation of munitions of war.

Secretary of War Garrison is greatly interested in the maintenance of these factories and his army organization plan will be worked out with special reference to the facilities in time of war and their nature in times of peace.

Middle West for Big Navy.
The reports on the change of sentiment in the middle west come from Ralph B. Straesburger, who for a month has been directing a campaign there in behalf of the Navy league.

"The middle west today is lined up solidly for a big navy," he said. "In the oldest and most conservative Democratic districts, from which the greatest opposition has come in the past to a naval program insuring peace and honor for the nation, the greatest revolution has taken place."

Help from Porto Rico.
The plan for national defense is not confined to the mainland of the United States, according to a request just received at the war department from a number of Porto Ricans. These men want to organize a regiment of militia.

There is already in Porto Rico a native regiment in the regular army establishment, the officers of which, however, are Americans. This regiment has requested service in Mexico if it becomes necessary to send an army of intervention there.

Secretary of War Garrison is now at Sea Girt, N. J., preparing his report to congress on the army reorganization.

TRAINED MEN OFF TO PLATTSBURG

All but One of Westerners Have Seen Service; Eager for Army Schooling.

ADVICE TO STATESMEN.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Western men going to the military training camp at Plattsburg barracks, New York, passed through Detroit tonight. They met for the first time on the train at Chicago this morning.

En route it developed that instead of being raw recruits, all but one have had some military experience, ranging from South Africa and Cuba to the recent drills of Battery C, Illinois national guard.

The party might have been called "The Adventure" club, as all its members have enjoyed adventure and are not averse to more, although the gray hair period has been reached by some of them.

Men Have Military Records.
W. U. Longwell has a military record as follows: Battery F, Pennsylvania volunteers, 1899; Second United States cavalry; Lieutenant in Kitchener's scouts, South Africa; Lieutenant in Marshall's horse, Cape Colony, South Africa; Cape mounted police.

Other men who also have seen service are A. C. Marriott, Lieutenant First Illinois cavalry; Harry Hill, sergeant, First Illinois cavalry; H. L. Wallace, First Illinois volunteer, 1908; Edward C. Starrett of Shiloh, Ia., Culver graduate; R. D. Bokum, Morris Metcalf, John W. Brown, and John S. Miller, all of Battery C, Illinois national guard; Dr. Edward Sherman, Third Illinois national volunteers.

Eager to Re-enter Service.
"I look forward to military camp life with pleasure," Mr. Wallace said. "If a man once gets a taste of field service he never forgets it and is always eager to enjoy the outdoor life again. I expect this month to be of great benefit to the men who attend. I hope next year to be with a thousand Chicago men in camp at Port Sheridan."

Military text books kept the embryo volunteer officers on the train busy and old colleagues used the art of student days and "boned" for the "exam" at Plattsburg.

Mr. Hill, who has put in years as a national guardsman, realizes the knowledge and skill necessary to manage a military organization even in times of peace, and is eager to put in a month at study and drill, in addition to his regular duties with the First cavalry.

"Somebody must really know what to do, if we are to be prepared to form a volunteer army," Mr. Hill said.

Advice to Statesmen.
"Any statesman who thinks that 1,000,000 armed men could spring into an army in a month or a year should enlist in a national guard regiment," Mr. Marriott said.

"He would then be in a position to understand what he was talking about. I hope that men everywhere will realize that to be prepared to organize a volunteer force there must be thousands of men competent to command."

BOOM HERE, FORD ASSERTS.
Manufacturer Sees Prosperity on Every Side—Refuses to Make Cares for European Belligerents.

New York, Aug. 8.—[Special.]—"If I had 100,000 cars right now I could place them all," Henry Ford said tonight. He had just been asked what he thought about the prosperity of this country at the present time.

"Prosperity?" he repeated. "It has been reported to me from all quarters. Conditions in this country were never better. There is not one bad spot that I know of, and I have heard from them all. Crops are good and the farmers are buying. We have large orders from everywhere."

"As for the manufacture of cars for war purposes, all I can say is that I don't want any of the war supply money. I will make no war munitions for any country except the United States."

Mr. Ford announced that the Detroit plant would be closed to allow a two weeks' vacation on full pay to his employees.

ACTRESS WILL BE MANAGER.
Grace George to Take Entire Control of Plays at Playhouse Theater, in New York City.

New York, Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Grace George, who off the stage is Mrs. William A. Brady, wife of the theatrical producer, is to become a manager on her own account. She will assume the direction of the Playhouse theater, beginning in September, putting in force her own policy, selecting her own plays, choosing the players who will be associated with her, and making all the productions under her own personal direction.

Polarine

Minimizes Motor Troubles In 400,000 Cars

More motor troubles are caused by poor oils than by any other factor in motoring, and hundreds of thousands of motorists have now found this out.

That is why Polarine is so popular. In the Middle West alone probably 400,000 cars are now using Polarine. That is a conservative estimate based on actual sales, the number of cars in this territory, and the average number of gallons of oil that a car consumes in twelve months.

Think what this means. It means that this oil is the final choice of hundreds of thousands of owners—men who have tried all kinds of oils, under all conditions. It means that you, too, will some day find the ultimate lubrication in Polarine.

Polarine is the scientific lubricant. It maintains the correct lubricating body at any motor speed or temperature. It lubricates perfectly in every standard make and type of motor now produced.

Why accept oils you know nothing about when Polarine is recommended in this way by 400,000 users?

MAKING PROGRESS.

There was a decorous formality to the hanging scene at Starville, Miss., where the townsfolk and friends from the country to the number, estimated, of 5,000, saw an open air execution of two negroes, which will raise our civilization, we trust, in the opinion of foreigners who have been judging America by its lynchings.

It is true that the people made a picnic of it, with the concomitants of hard boiled eggs and ham sandwiches. If this seems to go back into the seventeenth or eighteenth century it must be remembered as an encouraging factor that the execution was lawful. That much progress has been made.

AMERICA, FIRST OR LAST?

The head that tries to contain and control itself with purely American thought in this land of America sometimes feels as if the hyphens were playing on it like a number of single sticks. About all that is necessary to bring the cudgels into action is the expression of an opinion which concerns itself entirely and completely with the interests of the U. S. A.

It has come, we fear, to be seditions to think and act as an American. It will get the one who tries it into the high court of the hyphen on trial for his life.

Apparently for an American to preserve any standing in any court of opinion it is necessary for him to think as a German, as an Englishman, as a Frenchman, Russian, or Italian, and to do otherwise denotes a lack of humanity, a lack of intelligence, a lack of courage, and reveals the soul of a profit seeking, ignorant, timid creature whom the world will despise.

Thus we must submit to British sea law because our protests embarrass a nation which is fighting the cause of humanity against barbarous Germany, the modern Hun, who will put the edge of the sword to the neck of civilization.

Thus we must stop the sale of munitions of war to the British, French, and Russians, because the sale may enable them to overthrow the only true social order and to erect triumph upon the ruins of the English, and the pleasures of the French.

We are not to be permitted to consider the submarine in terms of possible American exigency. We are not permitted to consider the munitions question in relation to any possible American need. We are not permitted to consider first of all what may be the consequence of any act to the United States.

There is a paper of German sympathies in Milwaukee called the Free Press. It suggests that Sir Edward Grey, observing the "trucking policy of the (United States) administration, its failure immediately and adequately to protest British outrages upon neutral rights, while studiously protecting the traffic in arms, may be justified in thinking that "our honor and our right are purchasable."

There is a journal in Chicago called the British (Western) American. It says:

"Most of the better newspapers of this country have voiced the American disgust at Germany's attitude. A few cringing compromisers—like The Chicago Tribune—are sufficiently lacking in backbone to advocate further respectful treatment of Germany. The Tribune says that we are negotiating with Britain over her law breaking; why not also with Germany? According to this meek position, a petty offender and a cutthroat are in the same class, and deserve equal leniency. The Tribune is strong for a bigger army and navy; its own fighting qualities, as revealed in its editorials, are those of the coward and runaway.

President Wilson has been very patient with the Hun. But there is a limit to even Puritan good nature, and we have confidence in his stamina and resource in the old contest of Might against Right.

Samples of alleged American thinking in two American cities. We may do these particular journals an injustice in assuming that they even try to think as Americans. In the case of the British-American, the post hyphen word may be merely superficial, indicating that for reasons which the editor finds sufficient, publication is in Chicago rather than Manchester.

We submit that, until the fact has been proved otherwise, this is a nation. It has its interests. It is neither seditions nor treasonable to consider them. Its honor, its conscience, its welfare, and its future may be involved in this war of nations.

JAPAN AND AMERICA.

The curious slant which induces extreme pacifists to fear bellicosity at home rather than abroad, to see our own nation as the aggressor, never the victim of aggression, has been illustrated in the well intended efforts of Dr. Jordan, Dr. Shaffer Mathews, and Dr. Gulick to bring about a better understanding between the American and Japanese people. In their laudable anxiety to counteract unreasoning prejudice and jingoism in the United States they have presented as a picture of Japanese policy which does not square with the conclusions of common sense drawn from the visible movements of that policy. Dr. Mathews, if we remember rightly, was convinced that Japan intended only what was good for China and for the world.

That sentimentalizing and idealizing the Japanese will contribute to peace between our countries may seem probable to pacifists. Clearer judgment will tell us they will only increase misunderstanding and invite eventual conflict. This warning is worth repeating in connection with an editorial in the Japan Advertiser, a newspaper published in English in Tokyo.

Dr. Mathews and Dr. Gulick went to Japan on a mission of the Federal Council of Churches, an ardent pacifist organization, and upon their report to the council the Japan Advertiser remarks:

"We cannot get away from the impression that the effect in Japan will be to make it more difficult than ever for the Japanese to grasp the idea that there is an American side to the problem, and to realize that the federal and state governments are not actuated by prejudice and dislike but by the desire to do what is best for the people to whom they are responsible. It will be surprising if the report is not quoted before long by Japanese papers and politicians as the final evidence that America has 'no case.'"

The report was written, of course, for the council and with intent to impress American opinion. The Japan Advertiser does not doubt that it "will have much value in presenting to the American people the reasonable elements in Japan's case," but adds that "standing at a different viewpoint, we regret that the opportunity was not used to attempt something like a judicial and impartial opinion on the merits of the question."

Blind partisanship and jingoism are dangerous, but they will not be corrected by unbalanced altruism.

WHAT THE NAVY NEEDS.

If Congress has been encouraged to ignore or override sound expert recommendations as to army reform by the failure of the army to agree within itself, there is considerable excuse for its failure to legislate constructively for the navy.

For thirteen years the general board of the navy, of which Admiral Dewey is head, has presented a constructive program of naval increase, yet Congress has not consented to put it into effect, and naval building now lags far behind this expert body's recommendation.

The reason is that the general board is merely advisory and public opinion has not been informed enough to insist upon congressional attention to its advice. Pork for impracticable riverways and wasteful public buildings has been voted by the millions, but when it came to national defense the voice of economy was given a most respectful hearing.

But the European war is teaching the people something and citizens are organizing public opinion to induce Congress to listen to the men who know. Two of the ablest of our rear admirals, Fiske and Knight, and men like Commander Stirling, have taken their careers in their hands and spoken out, and it may be hoped the day of ignorance and shirking is coming to a close. Admiral Fiske has told us that "our navy is unprepared, that American shores are not safe from a formidable enemy, and that the fleet must fall the country in its hour of need unless immediate steps are taken to increase its size and efficiency." The political head of the navy department, an inland newspaper editor, has tried to counteract the influence of these authoritative words, but for once the public seems to be willing to listen to the expert rather than the politician.

What does the navy need? An increase of ships is what naval advance means to the public, but much more is needed to raise efficiency. Our navy is commanded now by comparatively old men who hardly reach flag rank before they are retired. We need a personnel law which will bring officers through the several grades at an appropriate age and insure the navy experienced and vigorous command in all its branches.

A naval reserve of 50,000 is urged by the Navy League, and our present knowledge of the wastage of war will support such a demand.

The navy as an organization is lacking in the proper coordination and harmonious foresight necessary to efficiency. A general staff alone can provide this. The value of the general staff system, initiated by Germany and tardily adopted, through Elihu Root's advice, in our army, is well recognized except in America. The army general staff has not as much influence as it ought to have, but it is gaining steadily, and a corresponding body in the navy should be established without delay. As public interest in the national defense increases expert opinion will tell upon Congress, but it should have a recognized voice, which the general staff in each service will give it.

The Navy League does well also to recommend a council of national defense, "first, to secure official and authoritative information for Congress; second, to formulate and to recommend to Congress naval and military policies and standards, taking into consideration national defense, American policies, and the naval program and military strength of possible opponents."

The council would probably consist of the president, the secretaries of war and the navy, the chairmen of the senate and house committees on appropriations, foreign affairs, and military and naval affairs, the chief of staff of the army, and when the navy has its general staff, its chief, and the presidents of the army and navy war colleges.

This body would outline and coordinate a system of defense and of defense expenditure which would be harmonious, economical, and adjusted to our policies and needs as informed minds see them. Without such a body we shall go on wasting money without much result.

Editorial of the Day.

SAFETY IN SHIPBUILDING.

(From the New York World.)

In connection with the Eastland disaster, Secretary Redfield explains that the federal steamship inspection service has no power to pass on the construction of vessels. Obviously in this respect the United States laws are as faulty as the boat that turned turtle was unseaworthy.

Here was a ship notoriously of faulty design, generally known for its crankiness, which the owners had tried to remedy but had failed to correct. If the federal inspectors found that the vessel was sound, that she carried a full crew and the required life saving equipment, apparently there was nothing for them to do but issue the usual certificate.

After the burning of the General Slocum there was a spurt of activity in official circles and a general overhauling of excursion boats in local waters. After the Titanic went down Congress strengthened the laws governing life saving equipment. The Eastland disaster has now investigations are under way, and the public is informed by the secretary of commerce that a new vessel, however defective in design, under the federal laws can be used for passenger traffic if it fulfills certain minor requirements. It may not be able to keep afloat even at its own peril, but if its hull and boilers are safe and it carries enough life boats, United States law permits it to be used for excursion parties.

Evidently we learn nothing about safety in water transportation and shipbuilding except by the needless sacrifice of human life.

(From "Beauchamp's Career.")

He pays his dues; he will not pay the additional penny or two wanted of him, that we may be a step or two ahead of the day we live in, unless he is frightened. But scarcely anything less than the wild arm of a tocin will frighten him. Consequently the tocin has to be sounded; and the effect is a fearful past measure; his hanging of his army, his kneeling on the shore of his navy, his implorations of his yeomanry and his hedges, are said to note. His bursts of pot-valency (the male side of the maiden panic within his bosom) are awful to his friends. Particular care must be taken after he has begun to cool and calculate his chances of security, that he does not gather to him a curtain of volunteers and go to sleep again behind them; for they cost little in proportion to the much they pretend to be to him. In fact, they are doubtless; prophetic ones, providing one does not. At least we show that we are wanting in the taxpayer of a free land taxes himself, and his disinclination for the bitter task, have under circumstances of screaming urgency—as when the night-gear and bed linen of old convulsed Panic are like the churned Channel sea in the track of two hundred hostile steamboats, let me say—is of the kind the gentle schoolboy feels when death or an expedition has relieved him of his tyrant and he is entranced notwithstanding to go to his books.

(Revised by W. G. M.)

Dear Sir: I know that applications of this sort are always kind troublemakers but I owe it to myself to do it. I do not think that I am telling you for any literary service to my newspaper, but while I ought to hurry up and take a course and the chance of getting a steady position in my present trade are lessening, and how we kept behind about six months already, I would be glad to know if there is any manual work in your establishment that I could do (of short hours) and earn about enough to meet my expenses which are not very much. Respectfully yours, etc.

CLOTHES AND CIVILIZATION.

CIVILIZATION started on the African shore of the Mediterranean sea and the lands reached by the streams which flowed into the Mediterranean on the south. From here it extended around the eastern end of the sea to the northern shore. Flowing west to Italy, it began gradually to roll from south to north over Europe. It might have gone south across Africa, but it was stopped by the Sahara.

Consequently, the development of civilization was a result. Along the Mediterranean seashore comfort demanded clothes. Climate conditions were not so hard, and savages with few resources and few ideas were able to devise clothes to meet them.

Hard climate conditions been harder would have been impossible for the crude man of that day to have met them.

As man learned the art of clothing himself civilization spread away from the Mediterranean seashore. Civilization followed in the wake of socks.

Those who believe in the evolution of civilization hold the main contention of his fellow animals by four basic discoveries, in two of which a few animals share in a rudimentary degree, in two of which man is alone.

First and most important was the assumption of the upright posture, releasing the arms from duty as walking members and leaving them free to learn other uses. Some of the animals, notably the monkeys, have learned the rudiments of this lesson.

Second was the custom of storing food supply and other supplies in times of plenty against times of adversity. This custom of providence is shared by many of the lower animals.

Third was the custom of employing weapons for fighting other than the hands, feet, and jaws.

Fourth was the art of wearing clothes. Following close upon the art of wearing clothing and developing out of the same prompting came the art of building fires.

Man can now live in some comfort in any climate from the equator to the poles. The art of clothing has made this possible. Our problem is less gross, but more difficult. It has been proved that a man can so clothe himself as to retain life in the midst of the bitter cold of the arctic. It is our problem to determine what clothing keeps the body in greater comfort and promotes the highest efficiency under circumstances of climate, work, and bodily peculiarity with a due regard for the economy.

Studies of these problems have been made by the medical authorities of various countries. The most recent work of studies by Rubner of Germany are as regarded, no government has studied them as applied to their civilian population.

Malnutrition is not absorbed from the air, night or day. If your porch is well screened you are in no danger. The danger of malaria comes from the mosquito, not from the air. Screened in darker rooms properly screened.

NEED NOT SELL GOODS.

Hinsdale, Ill., Aug. 6.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I have had considerable trouble with a certain customer and would like to know if I am compelled to sell him goods where he tenders money in payment for the same. GROCERS.

CANNOT HOLD WIFE'S PROPERTY.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Some time ago a friend of mine borrowed money on property owned and bought by her previous to her marriage for the purpose of starting her husband in business. He has since failed in business, and, being delinquent in the payment of his rent for two months, the landlord served a five day notice on him. Kindly inform me if the landlord, in case he brings suit for the rent, can hold the wife's property for the husband's debt. During the year the landlord did nothing toward clearing the store, and the people were troubled considerably by insanitary conditions.

M. B. The landlord cannot hold the wife's property for the husband's debt. The lack of cleaning in the store probably does not release the husband from liability to pay rent unless especially so provided by the lease.

WIFE HAS RIGHT TO SELL.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I own a place of property in the city which is in my wife's name. She threatens to sell the property, and I would like to know what action I can take to stop such a sale.

R. H. The property being in your wife's name, she has a right to sell it if she so desires. However, as her husband, have a dower interest in the property, so that she cannot make a good title to the property without your joining in the sale. She can, however, sell her interest without your consent.

MUST PROVE IRREGULARITY IN WILL.

River Forest, Ill., Aug. 5.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—My father lived in Connecticut, where the law gives him of the property to the wife. My mother died and within a year my father remarried. My father died four years after his second marriage and willed the entire property to my stepmother. Can the two children who are of age and the children of the first marriage sue to have the property or must the will stand?

R. W. Unless you can prove some irregularity in the will it must stand. The fact that the children were not named in the will is no evidence that there might have been some undue influence exerted upon the father. If you should desire to investigate the matter consult a lawyer.

GERMANY NO BLEATING LAMBS.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Of all the nationalities here the Germans are the least neutral and the least patriotic in the part of the United States, and of all the nationalities here the Germans are the least neutral and the least patriotic in the part of the United States.

They sneer at President Wilson as not being neutral, and the thought has often come to my mind how neutral a German president would be. Granting that down in his heart Wilson does sympathize with the allies, is it not greatly to his credit that he does not allow his sympathies to control his actions, that he is so lenient to the Germans in this crisis, and refrains from helping the allies by making war against the Germans?

The Germans claim that the English papers at least contain articles by various authors defending all the belligerents. How many articles do the German papers contain giving the English viewpoint?

The German say the United States violates her neutrality by shipping out ammunition; at the same time, however, they claim that Roumania is violating her neutrality by refusing to export ammunition, thereby preventing the Turks from obtaining it. It seems to me the Germans should stop hurling invectives at others for not being neutral until they at least attempt to be a little fair themselves.

It seems to me that Germany went into this war because she was afraid Russia would defeat Austria and thus gain access to the Baltic. In this Germany is no worse than the other nations, as they are all jealous of each other, but she should not pose as a poor bleating lamb beset by wolves.

GERMAN-AMERICAN.

IT STILL WAVES.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I have read so many remarkably fine editorials in THE TRIBUNE that after reading that of today on "The Sale of Arms," I feel it no more than right to give expression to approval. I confess I have not been able to read between the lines, as many have, according to Vox Pop, finding all brands of foreign war; they have all looked pro-American to me, and I have had no trouble whatever in understanding and accepting Stephen Decatur's sentiment.

It has, by the way, stuck to the mast-head mightily well, considering the stones that have been thrown at it, until now it seems to me to the throwers "I am vindicated, and I forgive you." D. B. D.

CONTESTION OF PACIFISTS.

Middle Haddam, Conn., Aug. 6.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In one of your editorials you make the statement that "the income of an armaments manufacturer is not subject to taxation." This is a statement which I have never seen before, and I am sure that it is a statement which is not true.

In the meantime let us have armaments, but let us realize that armaments alone can never stop war.

MILLION IN SALT, CHANG'S SQUEEZE BEFORE HIS FALL

Davis Explains Ramifications of Business Intrigue in China.

BY OSCAR KING DAVIS.

(Copyright, 1915, by The Chicago Tribune.)

PEKING, China, June 29.—Chang Hu, the vice minister of finance and director of the salt gabelle, having lost his job in disgrace and having been in danger of losing his life as well, the matter is now the subject of endless discussion and controversy in Peking.

It is not material to the purpose of this letter whether Chang Hu lost his job and his face through an earnest, honest effort on the part of President Yuan Shih-kai to clean the grafters out of his government, or simply because his squeeze was too large or because it fell awkwardly for him of squeeze of some of his influential superiors.

In previous letters I have remarked that the Chinese objection to the squeeze seems to be based on degree rather than on principle. That statement probably should be amended in one particular. The objection may be based upon incidence as well as on degree.

That is, if a man's little game happens to run counter to the little game of another man who has more influence, trouble is likely to result. But that is another matter, to be dealt with later. Let us consider Chang Hu and his fall at present.

The Salt Monopoly.

Salt in China is often said to be a government monopoly. That is not accurate. The salt business is a private monopoly, under government license. Salt is taxed upon production, transportation, and sale. There are thus three broad classes of tax, but the intricacies of Chinese ingenuity have produced so many variations, accretions, and additions that no man can tell, offhand, what the total number of taxes of all kinds may be on any particular quantity of salt.

The Chinese have a wide general reputation for business acumen and honor. Yet it is a singular fact, that whenever foreigners who are prone to elaborate the Chinese for the possession of these qualities come to make loans to China upon the security of certain Chinese revenues, they forthwith demand that the administration of these revenues shall be placed under foreign control. So it has been in the case of salt, the revenues from which are pledged for the service of several loans.

Englishman Heads Salt Gabelle.

Thus it was that Sir Richard Dane, an Englishman who had made his name famous for ability and uprightness in the salt administration of India, came to be placed at the head of the foreign staff in the administration of the Chinese salt gabelle.

Sir Richard Dane has well settled ideas upon the subject of salt taxation and the collection of the revenue. He understands well the beauties and efficiencies of simplicity and uniformity.

Consequently, he has been laboring for some time to secure the introduction and faithful observation of a plan to tax salt at the source, as whisky is taxed in the United States, and thereafter set it free to run its unhindered course in the trade of China.

Chang Hu, as head of the Chinese administration of salt, professed to believe in Sir Richard's proposals. Whether he really did believe in them or not is not material now. On the surface he set to work to support Sir Richard, and he did so enthusiastically as to excite the admiration of Sir Richard and the foreign bankers who are interested in the salt revenues, through holding certain loans.

Regulations on Selling.

There are certain clearly defined districts of production of salt in China, and under the government scheme the salt from each district has a clearly defined district where it may be sold, and it is not permitted legally to go elsewhere. One of the great production districts is called Changhu. Changhu salt is sold in parts of several provinces. It is a big business.

Men who transport salt do so under government license, and only holders of such licenses may engage in that business. Also only holders of government certificates may sell salt. Seller and transporter each pays well for his license.

It is charged against Chang Hu, in the memorial of impeachment filed by the minister of finance and by certain censors, that soon after he took office he revoked the licenses of the salt merchants in a certain district.

Of course this action was based upon a line of charges that these merchants had committed certain serious offenses, one of which was failure to subscribe to government loans as liberally as they should have done.

Naturally the merchants made protest and declared they were protesting against the cancellation of their certificates. Also they appealed to the government for compensation for their loss.

It is charged that Chang Hu certified that in his opinion these merchants were entitled to a certain compensation, and that he thereupon effected a loan of $400,000 for the purpose of giving this compensation.

Loan Making a Habit.

It is to be understood that in China any ministry or department or bureau of province seems to have the faculty of making a loan whenever it likes, without much if any regard for the central government.

Now it is charged that Chang Hu distributed part of the proceeds of his $400,000 loan to the complaining salt merchants, and that he then renewed their licenses, requiring them to pay him for the loss of squeeze of some of his influential superiors.

It is also charged that he had meantime organized a new transportation company of his own, which was to transport the salt of the Changhu district. This company did not actually engage in the transportation business, but sublet its rights to different subordinate companies, getting a good percentage on all their business.

And the salt merchants, in addition to paying Chang Hu a squeeze for the renewal of their licenses—a squeeze paid out of the government money which he had given them as compensation for his own act of canceling their original licenses—were required to take their salt from the transportation companies which had their business as subcontractors of Chang Hu's big concern.

Chang Hu's Profits Great.

Of course it was good business for Chang Hu and his friends. The estimate of the censors and the minister of finance is that his company rolled up between $700,000 and $800,000 in less than a year, and that without a dollar of investment or risk.

Some of Chang Hu's friends say, what of it? Somebody had to transport the salt—why not Chang Hu? That is an explanation or defense which comes within the degree class of objection to the squeeze.

There are others who give a different explanation of the trouble. They say Chang Hu fell because of the incidence of his squeeze, and they explain that the minister himself "comes of an old salt family." There is an extremely deft suggestion in that saying. The minister of finance, being "of an old salt family," has relatives who are in the business, perhaps in all its three branches.

Loud complaint has been made that Chang Hu permitted the transportation of Changhu salt into districts where it did not belong and had no right to go. It is intimated that some of the minister's friends or relatives had interests that were invaded by Chang Hu's new scheme.

Chang Hu Too Daring.

Perhaps Chang Hu was careless a little in regard to his organization and did not bother about seeing that his concern did not cross the lines of any of the minister's interests.

The minister only recently came unexpectedly into office. It has been suggested to me that if Chang Hu had had a few weeks' warning he could have arranged his own concerns so that they would not have crossed lines with the minister of any of his family.

So you see there are wheels within wheels, and the explanation of an "honest, sincere desire to clean up" loses something of its strength and credibility. All this must have a familiar sound to many Americans. It has not been so common in public office as among the big officials of private concerns, especially the big corporations, for an official to use the opportunities of his connection for personal gain.

But the "construction company" or the "working company" is a device thoroughly well understood in the United States, and many a substantial fortune has resulted from its employment. There are other cases than Chang Hu's which show that the Americans are not the only ones familiar with the device.

It has special application to the railroad situation here now and to the case of the vice minister of communications. But of that later.

HIGHWAYMEN ARE OBEYED.

They Tell Victim to Go Straight Home and He Heeds Instructions.

Abraham Mandel of 1310 South Troy street was held up and robbed of $7.00 early yesterday morning a block from his home by robbers, one of them armed with a revolver.

"Put up your hands," ordered the man with the weapon.

Mandel complied, and the other searched his clothing and took his money, he told the West Thirtieth street police later.

"Look straight ahead and don't turn around, and keep on going," ordered the armed highwayman.

Mandel did.

CATHOLICS TO HOLD MEETING AT TOLEDO, O.

Plan for Annual Convention; Representative of Pope Will Be Present.

Toledo, O., Aug. 8.—Plans were announced today for the annual convention of the American Federation of Catholic Societies, the largest Catholic organization in the United States. The convention, which will be held here Aug. 15 to 18, will be attended by a throng of prominent churchmen and laymen from all parts of the country.

The papal delegate, the Rev. John Bonanno, the representative of Pope Benedict XV., will open the convention with pontifical mass at the Cathedral of St. Francis de Sales.

Monseigneur Bonanno will be the celebrant of the mass.

Among the prelates who have already promised to be in attendance are Archbishop Messmer of Milwaukee, the Rev. Joseph Weber, C. R., of Chicago, Archbishop Modler of Cincinnati, Bishop McFall of Trenton, N. J., Bishop Muldoon of Rockford, Ill.; Bishop Alerding of Ft. Wayne, Ind.; Bishop Hartley, Columbus, O., and Bishop Richter of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Many Societies Represented.

Large numbers of delegates will represent such leading national organizations as the Catholic Order of Foresters, the German Central Verein, the Ancient Order of Hibernians, Catholic Knights of America, Knights of St. John, Catholic Mutual Benefit association, Knights of St. George, Bohemian Roman Catholic First union, the South Slavonic union, Young Men's institute, Young Men's National union, Catholic Church Extension society, Catholic Colonization society, Catholic Indian congress, Knights of Father Matthew, and the Lithuanian Roman Catholic alliance.

Mass meetings to be held.

In addition to the convention proper, two big mass meetings will be held in the Toledo Coliseum. At the first mass meeting, which will take place on Sunday, the principal speaker will be F. Mansfield of Boston, former state treasurer of Massachusetts, who will speak on "Divorce."

At the second mass meeting, which is scheduled for Tuesday, the speakers will be Bishop Muldoon, the Rev. F. Stebbins, dean of the Loyola university school of sociology, Chicago; the Rev. P. C. Kelley, president of the Church Extension society; and Charles E. Fay, president of the Common Cause society of Boston. At this meeting all phases of the "immigration question" will be discussed.

MAYOR INJURED IN AUTO?

NO; HE WAS GOLFING.

Associated Press Report Tells of Accident Rumor, but Thompson Is at Home Resting Peacefully.

A report reached the Associated Press last night, by way of Springfield, that Mayor Thompson had been injured in an automobile accident near Long Lake. Efforts to reach the mayor's residence on the telephone met with no success, but Joseph A. Pugh and Charles C. Fitzmorris, the mayor's secretary, said the report was false.

"I haven't seen the mayor for a couple of days," said Mr. Pugh at first. "I don't know where he intended to spend Sunday. I was out at Long Lake all day myself and just got back. If I hear anything, though, I'll let you know."

A few moments later Mr. Pugh called up and said:

"Why, Mayor Thompson is home in bed, all tired out with his day's outing. He was out at Wheaton golfing. He was in no automobile accident, and is feeling perfectly well, with the exception that he's pretty tired."

"Nothing to the report at all," said Mr. Fitzmorris.

NOT FOR CUBS N TWO GAMES WITH ROBINS

Second Battle Goes Eleven
Innings; Scores 10-7,
5-4; O'Day Umpires.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

The renewed pennant aspirations of the Cubs got a severe jolt yesterday, when the peppy Brooklyn team invaded the west side and captured both games of a double header before the eyes of a large and enthusiastic Sunday crowd. The first game was won by a count of 10 to 7 and the second 5 to 4, the latter combat going to eleven innings and being filled with thrills and excitement.

As a result of the sad doings, the Cubs dropped from second to third place, and now are three games from the top and only a game and a half from sixth place. Brooklyn advanced to second place because of the double conquest and the race is just as hot as before.

Big Day for Fans.
Many things happened during the long afternoon of pastime to stimulate the emotions of the fans. Frank Schulte poked two old fashioned home runs against the right field sign board, one in each game. Hippo Vaughn was knocked off the slab in the first game; "Shuffling Phil" Douglas was knocked off the slab in the sixth inning of the first game and two men were out; Nap Rucker, after entertaining the fans with a masterful exhibition of slow ball pitching in the second game, finally was knocked so freely that he retired; Bert Humphries, after apparently having his game won, was knocked off the slab in the ninth inning of the second game, and Hank O'Day brought the fans to their feet with rousing cheers in the fourth inning of the first game when he strode upon the field to resume his old time job of umpiring.

The return of Hank to the job was the biggest surprise of the day. When the first game began, Ump Quigley was working solo, as Al O'rah, his partner, was taken ill yesterday in Cincinnati. President Tener was at the park and not into communication with O'Day when the latter appeared at the grounds before the game began. He was hired right on the spot, but Hank had left his trusty mask and protector at home and had to go after those important things.

Cheers for Hank O'Day.
Hank was back and decked out in the full uniform of the fourth inning began and immediately walked out upon the field and batted down to first base to take the first out. He was a good deal of a step out of the stand and the cheering began. It increased to such volume that Hank had to blush with pride. In the second game Hank worked in the old place back of the bat and there never was a side made on his decisions although he hadn't umpired since 1913 except in some charity games this summer. The Cubs played some awful baseball. It is the first game they were licked thoroughly from the fifth inning on. Five errors were made behind Vaughn and Zabel and four of them figured in the result of the game. Hippo Vaughn pitched three innings, but when the visitors rapped him for a couple of runs in the fourth his mates squared things in their half by driving in a couple, due to P. Schulte's homer with one man on the run-way.

Hippo and Mates Blow.
In the fifth Hippo and several of his mates all flew together and the Dodgers hammered in four runs. Vaughn was ranked in the midst of the melee and Zabel summoned to the rescue, but he couldn't stop the furious rally. The Dodgers had their dander up and belted in two more in the sixth and a couple more in the seventh. All this time Douglas had been steaming for along splendidly. The Cubs had pushed one man around in the fifth, making three runs and three hits, and it seemed that would be all, but in the ninth there was a change of basists that ended the game of a calling and who were four Cubs had been driven home and every fellow who appeared was laming the ball. Manager Robinson yanked the tall Mc, Douglas and called Sherrod Smith to come in and save the game. The latter did so with the Cubs still lacking three runs of enough to tie.

Second Game Close Battle.
The second game was a close battle which the Cubs would have won except for a long bungleous work in the ninth. Bert Humphries and Nap Rucker started out to have a pitchers' battle, but the Dodgers got a couple of lucky runs in the fourth when the Cub defense cracked. The Cubs had earned one in the third and in the sixth they tied the count when Hites Zabel led off with a mighty drive against the left wing of the grand stand for three sacks. Red Murray drove home home with a single, and then in the next inning Frank Schulte made his second home run of the day, sending Humphries in ahead of him. Those two seemed enough margin for the Cubs to win, but there was a blunder in the ninth. O'Mara led off with a single, then Daubert cut one down to Phelan, who made a shot to second, but his aim was wide and both men were safe. Wheat followed with a terrific drive to right for a single, sending O'Mara home and Daubert to third. Humphries was benched by the manager and Lavender came to the mound. Cutshaw hit safely to center and Daubert scored the tying run.

Defeat for Cubs in Eleven.
Lavender got the side out with no further damage and the game ended at the eleventh, when Daubert led off with a double to left. Wheat fled out to go. Good and Daubert scooted to third on the catch, from where he scored on O'Mara's sacrifice fly to good, the speedy Brooklyn star barely beating Good's pop to the plate. In the last of the eleventh Phelan singled after one was out, but Daubert lined out to Cutshaw and Phelan was doubled off first base, ending the game.

Tribune Auditors Beat Lakes.
The Tribune auditing department yesterday defeated the Lakes, a semi-professional team, 3 to 5, outbating the prize nine. The auditors' catcher, scored a home run, and the Tribune's pitcher, scored a home run.

Normals won another extra inning battle at their park, when they defeated the West Ends, 6 to 5, in eleven innings, in the City League. The home team was forced to come from behind to win as the west ends led 4 to 0 at the end of the seventh, due to Ed Alquist's slugging the ball out of the lot in the fifth inning, with the bases loaded. Five hits in a row settled the Normals three runs in the seventh. Wash's error, with Black and Kading on second and third, where they had landed on passes and a double steal, tied up the game in the ninth, and La Ross helped win the game with a double in the eleventh, scoring on Coleman's single. Victors Earn First Two Tallies and Error Nets Final of 3 to 1 Game.

The Chicago Giants and the Tigers battled for four innings at Tiger park, and not until the final round was there a run scored. The Giants counted three times, while the Tigers in their half put over a lone run, leaving the final score 3 to 1. Buckner, the first man up for the Giants, poked a triple, and Joe Green scored him with a double. Willie Green counted Joe with a single and an error by Debus on Strother's grounder let W. Green in with the first run. A double by Artie Moore, followed by an error by Green, let the Tigers have their only run.

Old War Horse of Umpires Who Is Back on Job Again.

AFTER being without a job all this season, Hank O'Day, who has given more than twenty years of his life to the National league, was given as great applause for an hour's notice, and was given to a favorite ball game as manager of the Cubs. Hank hadn't been in umpire's hat since the close of the 1913 season, as all of 1914 he served as a volunteer, and the veteran has spent the summer doing nothing out of umpiring in a couple of charity games.

O'Day always has had his mask, protector, and blue suit ready for the watch the games. President Tanager hired him at once, and in less than an hour Hank had gone to his home, procured his harness, and was dressed and ready for another man to be procured at once.

OFFMAN ELECTRICS defeated the Franklin Feds at Forty-fourth and Twenty-seventh streets, 6 to 3. The victory was the sixteenth straight for the Hoffmans. Score:

ECLIPSE VICTOR IN DOUBLE BILL; GANZER CLOUTS

Features Victory Over Kennicotts, 3-2, and Regents, 7-0, with Big Stick.

The Roseland Eclipse won two games at Roseland, defeating the Kennicotts, 3 to 2, and shutting out the Regents in the afternoon game, 7 to 0. The morning game was featured by Ganzer's hitting, his timely swats ending in all of the runs. Flak pitched a fine game, as did Jahnke, but the former was stronger in the pitching. In the afternoon game heavy hitting by the Eclipse won the game. Ganzer again starting with the stick. Gollings, a new man, was tried out on the slab and pitched fine ball. Score:

The August Shoe Sale Is at Its Best

THE same qualities which have for years sustained the good name of this shoe store are those which are included in the exclusion of all others in the August Shoe Sale.

Women's low shoes, women's lace and button boots, women's afternoon and evening slippers, men's low shoes and boots, boys' and girls' shoes—in fact, shoes for every member of the family—comprise the August Sale stocks.

The daily replenishing of the stocks offers the continued advantage of an excellent selection.

Women's $7 Low Shoes Reduced to $4.75 and $5.25

Women's $5 Low Shoes Reduced to $3.45 and $3.95

New Fall Suits for Women at $47.50

A charming version of the new in fall suit fashions!

And this is but one of the new fall modes in suits that have been arriving daily, each bringing some interesting and individual interpretation of the latest styles.

It was, therefore, far from easy to choose just one suit to represent this varied collection—but

The New Fall Suits of Broadcloth (sketched here) Typify Splendidly the New Semi-fitting Silhouette

And are exceedingly smart in every detail from the high "chin collar" of plush to the tip of the flared skirt. A deep banding of the plush edges the coat-skirt, and even the skirt top is "different" with its loose garle-belt.

An unusually interesting mode, indeed, at $47.50.

Fourth Floor, North Room.

Special Clearance Sale of Silk Negligees & Kimonos

Of Messaline Silk Of Flowered Silk
Of Crepe de Chine

MANY beautiful negligees and kimonos are included in this clearance.

Every desirable color and tint will be found—and the styles vary from the simplest slip of a silken robe to elaborate affairs of laces and pleated crepe de Chine.

Reduced Regardless of Former Prices to
$3.95, $5.95, $7.50, $8.95,
$12.75, $15 and $18

These groups are comprised of negligees in odd sizes, though all sizes are included, in styles to be discontinued, some showing slight signs of handling, others a bit rumpled from displays. But

Each negligee presents an unusual value at its price.

Third Floor, North Room.

The New Fall Coats

Are Creating Keen Interest These Days in the Women's Apparel Sections

Coats were never more appealing than are these. They have just arrived with the first fashions of fall.

And more than half their charm lies in the adaptability of their fabrics to the new modes. Especially may this be seen in

These New Fall Coats of Velours Cloth at $37.50
(Sketched here)

The soft, supple fabric lends itself well to the new semi-fitting lines from shoulder to hip, and flares gracefully from hip to hem.

Interesting, too, is the high collar with the cravat in contrasting color drawn through, and the pockets set well back in the coat-skirt. $37.50.

The same mode may be had in mixtures, very new and exceedingly smart, at $40.

Fourth Floor, North Room.

The September Delineator and the Butterick Patterns for Fall are now on sale. The Fall edition of Butterick Fashions has just been issued.

Second Floor, North Room.

Beginning the Second Week of The August Sale of Furs

The latest conceptions of noted furriers are introduced and offered at pricings even these sections have seldom been in a position to offer before.

We specialize below on caracul coats—

At $135—the Caracul Coat at the Right

Fashioned on full flare-back lines, this coat of rich caracul has the collar and cuffs of chinola fur. Its splendid workmanship and the high character of the fur make it really exceptional at $135.

This coat is of wonderfully fine caracul broadtail, 45 inches in length, and has the cuffs and animal scarf collar of fisher fur. This is, indeed, one of the most remarkable values offered in the fur sale. $450.

Caracul coats at $90, $125 and $185, present in each instance an exceptional value.

Another Interesting Feature—

Is the special assortment of fur motor coats, Hudson seal coats and pony skin coats which come in for very special August Sale pricing.

Fox Fur Sets Are Declared Foremost in Fashion

And these fur sections are more than well prepared with an unusually varied assortment of these handsome fox furs.

Sets of red fox furs, of dyed blue fox furs, of cross fox furs, of dyed battleship gray fox furs, varying in price according to the kind of fox fur in the set, from $55 to $250.

Specially new and attractive in sets are reproduction of silver fox at $100 the set, and natural fisher fur at $125 and $150 the set.

Fourth Floor, North Room.

The August Towel Sale

THIS is one of the most successful sales of the year—planned to renew old friendships and to make new friends by the score for this store.

How does it accomplish this? By giving such conspicuous values in towels as the following:

500 dozens of hemstitched, all-linen huck towels in assorted patterns—at $3 a dozen.

All-linen, scalloped huck towels in several attractive designs—at $5 a dozen.

350 dozens of hemmed bleached ribbed athletic bath towels in the August Sale—at $2.85 a dozen.

2,000 dozens of hemmed bleached bath towels—large sizes and of extra heavy weight in the August Towel Sale at $3, $3.60 and $5 a dozen.

Linens at Reduced Prices

We are continuing the Clearing Sale of odd and mused pattern table cloths, center pieces, luncheon cloths and scarfs marked at greatly reduced prices for immediate disposal.

Second Floor, North Room.

Crepe de Chine Envelope Chemises at $2.95 and $3.95

Every woman who visits these sections will be delightfully surprised, we believe, when she sees these lovely garments shown for the first time today.

The superior quality of the crepe de Chine, the dainty trimmings of lace and sprays of embroidery (even the back being trimmed), make these ideally beautiful garments.

At the Left—The crepe de Chine envelope chemise at $2.95.

At the Right—The crepe de Chine envelope chemise at $3.95.

1,000 New Bodices of Crepe de Chine at $1.50

Trimmed both front and back with deep points of Normandy lace, is a special feature. Pictured above and specially priced at $1.50.

Third Floor, North Room.

Mohair Brilliantines for Bathing Suits at 50c Yd.

Navy Blue Cardinal Red Black Medium Brown Green

This 42-inch imported mohair brilliantine, being light in weight and wiry, is a very desirable fabric for bathing suits, as bathing suits require a fabric which will not absorb water quickly.

This brilliantine is specially priced at 50c yard.

Misses' Attractive New Taffeta Frocks

Quaintly reminiscent of the laced bodices of almost a century ago comes the lovely Frock sketched at the right.

It is of a particularly exquisite heavy taffeta, with collar, vestee and cuffs of fine lace, satin bound. Pendant taffeta ornaments, silver tipped, add to its beauty. Price, $35.00.

A round yoke, skirt linked to bodice by means of buckled folds, and a sash which laces beneath these characterize the new model illustrated at the left. A white moire grosgrain waistcoat effect makes the front view quite as charming as the back. Price, $27.50.

Sixth Floor, North Room.

To Usher in the New Season:

Women's Silk Blouses

The first Blouses for autumn possess more than a hint of tailored simplicity, as the two illustrated reveal.

Other new models are arriving daily.
Sixth Floor, Middle Room.

Of Pussy Willow Taffeta, at $8.75 is the effective model sketched at the right. It exploits new, deep-cuffed sleeves which are cut in one with the pointed shoulder yokes, and a pretty collar that may be worn outside the coat collar.

Of Beautiful Crepe de Chine, at $6 comes the smart Blouse sketched at the left. For trimming, panel inserts, hemstitch-edged and emphasized with large pearl buttons, are effectively employed.

SECTION TWO. GENERAL NEWS, SOCIETY, MARKETS, WANT ADS.

OURS IS THE LIFE, OTHERS ARE ODD: MISS ANDERSON

Members of Literary Colony Give "Tribune" Readers Explanation of Their Creed.

OUTDOOR LIFE AS GOSPEL.

Two weeks ago a Lake Bluff land-lord, unappreciative of the spirit of the Greeks, not a believer in art for art's sake, forced Miss Margaret Anderson, editor of The Little Review, a magazine devoted to New Hellenism, to vacate her house.

The colony decided to move down to the beach near Ravinia park, where Uncle Sam charged no rent. But the newspapers found them out and the "people" came to look at them and to wonder at their "queerness." The colony became annoyed. In order that the "people" may understand that the life of the colony is the natural, proper way to live, and to hush the reports, Miss Anderson and the other colonists consented to write for The Tribune their view of the life and its application to the spirit of New Hellenism.

BY MARGARET C. ANDERSON. (One of the Little Review.)

The Little Review is a magazine that believes in life for art's sake; in the individual rather than incomplete people; in an age of imagination rather than reasonableness; a magazine that believes in ideas even if they are not ultimate conclusions, and values its ideas no less as to live them; a magazine that believes in the future, but particularly in the New Hellenism, whose philosophy is applied anarchism, whose policy is to live in the life, and whose function is to express itself.

Read our credo, and if you understand it, you will understand really why we choose to live here in tents on the beach of Lake Michigan, a life which approaches the ideal in our opinion, but which in the opinion of the "people" is an oddity. We are not odd; it is the common herd who are "odd." We are trying to live a natural life. People generally are upside down; they know in their souls that is right, how to live, but they do just the opposite. We are right side up.

Economy, for One Thing.

Also this life in tents enables us to save money, a necessary procedure in order that the magazine may live and spread its gospel of truth. Eighteen months ago I started the magazine because in spending time in reading poets and studying art I felt that there should be an outlet. I want to raise people so that they will have the quality to appreciate higher things.

Now let me explain about our life here. We are living with Whitman. Let me say I see the secret of the making of the best persons. It is to grow in the open air and to eat and sleep with earth.

Describes Daily Life.

Let me say we can do that here. Take a day from our "log." When the sun casts a slant over the lake we rise, run out into the cool, fresh, untainted waters in a one piece bathing suit, unhampered by conventional skirts and the vain sparkle of spangled dry beach rigs of the title. Then a cold, clear, and sound and other dip, a hearty breakfast of milk, cereal, and eggs, a long walk to the train and to work in the horrid city.

When we come back from a day in Chicago we are weary, from the people who have no idea of how to adjust themselves to real life. The Chicago people, the all common humans, are mugged, people, foggy by convention and precedent. But when we get home, O, what a relief; right into our bathing suit, a communion with earth and water. Then we build a fire and cook dinner, baking our potatoes in the coals, broiling our bacon over the fire holding the slices with long sticks, while the tea brews on the nearby hot sand.

No Vanity and Pride.

We do not suffer from the inconvenience of only because we are not concerned with trivial vanity and pride. We are not in each tent, with our faces clean, vanity and pride are not in our creed. We wash our dishes in the edge of the lake, using sand for soap. Likewise we do our laundry. Sand is the original cleansing powder. Not only is our life according to the spirit of our creed but it is joyful. We just live in our bathing suits. There are no seams, and the rustic and odor of the mug-wits are very faint on the breeze.

Do I think all young women should try this life? Ah, it might be hard, but they could if they thought straight.

Are Embodied by It.

Now is the time. We dare to live and let the sun's rays pierce us, let the wind blow about us, we feel that we are cleansed through our rough. We are made over into new persons. We roll our coats out under the stars and go to sleep watching them. While we dream we are sprinkled with the dew of which ennobles us, the spirits of the gods.

FAVOR KEEPING MOOSE ALIVE

Progressive Chiefs Oppose Re-enlistment Under the G. O. P. Banner.

New York, Aug. 8.—(Special.)—Should the Progressive party continue as a party, or should it be allowed to die? Would it be advisable for the Progressives to re-enlist under the Republican party banner and fight within the Republican ranks for the principles the Bull Moose men espoused?

These questions were asked of prominent Progressives in various portions of the country by the World. "The inquiry was provoked by the recent announcement of Theodore Douglas Robinson, state chairman of the Progressive party, Frederick M. Davenport, late Progressive candidate for governor, and Chauncey J. Hamlin, Progressive leader of Erie county, that they intended to rejoin the G. O. P. and battle for their principles within the party that they had formerly deserted."

For Keeping Party Distinct.

The majority of responses to the World's telegrams favor keeping the party alive. William Allen White of Kansas says:

"It seems to me that the party Progressives who have more desire for justice than for jobs of prosperity to sit tight, hold the organization, which is still intact, though largely a paper organization, and to wait, perhaps a year, perhaps two years, perhaps four. We feel that sooner or later the country must turn from its present confusion to some sincere attempt at adjusting the obvious social and economic inequities of our present system."

Medill McCormick's Views.

Medill McCormick, national committeeman from Illinois, says that the future of the Progressive party is in the light of the economic and political consequences of the war, depends, I believe, chiefly upon the action of the next Republican convention and not a little upon the report of the Democratic congress. "In the light of the economic and political consequences of the war, depends, I believe, chiefly upon the action of the next Republican convention and not a little upon the report of the Democratic congress."

TOWN COOKIN' HIS DOWNFALL

Farmer Was Too Clever for "Slickers," but Not for Doctor.

Down on the farm in Nebraska Stuart Peterson is considered a right likely fellow by the other "hands." He receives $85 a month and board from his employer.

Peterson occasionally goes to town with the rest of the boys, but he doesn't enjoy it much because there isn't any place to eat except restaurants, and town cooking is not to his taste.

By staying away from town Peterson saved money.

Several weeks ago he counted up and discovered that he had something over $236. This was enough to take him to Sioux Falls, S. D., where he had relatives, and still have something left over. Peterson told the boys good-bye and caught a train for Sioux Falls, Minn.

Too Clever for Slickers.

Before leaving he had been warned by the "slickers" that if he went to the city, Peterson said he wasn't going to let any "slickers" get his money and he pinned up his shirt.

When he landed in Sioux Falls he was hungry. He went to a restaurant and ate 35 cents' worth. The town cooking did not suit him. He went to a drug store and doctor's office and found that a drug store or doctor's office would be the best place to go.

Then this is what happened to Peterson. According to the story he told the desk sergeant at the Des Moines police station, where he went to swear out a warrant.

I went into the office of Dr. A. W. Faulbaum at 40 South Haled street and told him I had a pain in the stomach. He looked at me and asked how much money I had. I had about $200, but I was too sick to tell him that I had more than a hundred.

Doctor's Fee $88.

"Then he told me it would take a hundred to cure me. I was too smart to pay him right away and I argued until he let me go down to the drug store and get a needle into my arm and shot some water into it. Then he gave me two big bottles of medicine and told me they would cure me."

I went over to a drug store to see if the medicine was all right. The clerk told me I had been bunked by a slicker. I went back to Dr. Faulbaum and told him that I wanted a receipt for my money and he wrote something on a piece of paper and I gave him $88 more. Now, then, I've just found out that the "slickers" were a promise more for $88.

Ralph Stewart, a druggist at 600 West Madison street, analyzed the "medicine" and said it was worth about 15 cents. He cured Peterson's costly stomach ache for 8 cents.

Dr. Faulbaum, when visited by a Tribune reporter, would not discuss the case.

SMOKE REPORT WAS PREDICTED

Engineer Gave Warning Board Would Oppose Plan to Electrify Terminal.

Were the findings of the smoke abatement committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce determined in advance by the railroad?

Publication in THE TRIBUNE yesterday of a Washington dispatch outlining the conclusions of the committee, brought to light the predictions of L. C. Fitch, made in 1911, before the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Mr. Fitch formerly was connected with the Illinois Central and the Great Western railroads as consulting engineer. More recently he has been employed by various Canadian lines.

In 1911, when the smoke abatement committee was appointed, he inferred that the final report would be adverse to the plan of electrification. He said the subject was being approached from the wrong angle and predicted the report would place the cost of electrification at $250,000,000.

Finances Are Considered.

Mr. Fitch asserted it would only cost half this to electrify Chicago railway terminals. This is what he said:

"Considering further the Chicago situation, it has always appeared to me that the question has been approached from the wrong angle. It has always been a question of will it pay?"

While of course the financial question is the all important one, yet there are instances in this city (Chicago) where electrification on certain branches of service will be justified, not as a whole perhaps, but an initial installation will pay, and that will demonstrate whether an extension of electrification will pay.

That in my opinion is the proper way to investigate the question here. There has recently been appointed a smoke abatement committee in Chicago, and I do not think it will be difficult to write that committee's report now, because statements have been made that it will cost $250,000,000 to electrify the railroads in Chicago.

Expresses Different View.

"I do not agree with that statement. I think a sum half that amount would meet all the objectionable features of steam operation in Chicago today."

"The situation here demands not only electrification but revision of the entire terminal situation. The railroad tracks in Chicago were laid principally as though shut out of a gun, without much system or relation to each other."

"What should be done, in my opinion, is that the railroads at a whole should get together and revise their terminals and electrify them within certain reasonable limits."

GIRLS BITTEN BY CAT.

Feline Babes Was Transmitted To Children.

Whether two girls infected with rabies germs because of a cat's bite will not be known until tomorrow night, when a post mortem on Thomas Tomaset by Dr. A. Lagorio, head of the Pasteur institute, will have been finished. The children are Margaret Gardelli, 12 years old, 608 North Hoyne avenue, and Elizabeth Oushoudski, 12 years old, Margaret's next door neighbor.

RIDER KILLED IN A COLLISION

Motorcycle Driver Fails to Slacken Speed and Hits Auto.

BULLETIN.

An automobile with six passengers skidded and struck a tree at Seventy-first and Bond avenue early this morning.

William Snyder of 3406 Fifth avenue and Mrs. David Sleight, one of the women in the party, were taken to the Washington Park hospital.

Snyder, who was piloted beneath the machine, which overturned, may not survive.

The inexperienced V. S. Kallender of 8012 Harper avenue in handling a motorcycle probably was responsible for the death yesterday of W. A. Newby, an automobile salesman of 609 Diversey parkway.

Kallender bought a motorcycle a few days ago and had driven one only once before the purchase.

He was driving the machine south in Kenmore avenue with Newby on the rear seat. Charles R. Hall, secretary of the Showell Manufacturing company, was driving his automobile east in Lawrence avenue. Kallender did not slacken speed, and when Hall saw a collision was imminent he put on full speed to clear the street ahead of the cycle.

The smaller machine crashed into the rear fender of the car and both Kallender and Newby were hurled to the pavement.

Newby struck on his head and was carried unconscious to the Lakeside hospital, where he died at 8 o'clock last night.

Mr. Hall was not detained. Newby was 30 years old. Kallender escaped with a few bruises and was able to go to his home unassisted.

Another motor car—the seventh of the season—was spliced last night off the rickety, rattle bridge over Kellogg's ravine in Schlesier road, north of Zion City. The four occupants, two men and two women, miraculously escaped severe injury. They made their way to the home of Col. Robert Aiken and from there telephoned to Waukegan for another machine. Their car lies in the ravine, twenty feet below the bridge, a total wreck. The only clue to the identity of the motorists is the license number, "U-6234, Ill."

PREFERS PULPIT AND PARISH TO FORTUNE OF $15,000,000

Pittsburgh Priest Spurns Gold and Asks That Money Will Be Given to Poor Relatives.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 8.—(Special.)—Contented with his present estate in life, the Rev. William Graham, pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic church, prefers to remain a humble wearer of the cloth rather than burden himself with $15,000,000 left him through the death of relatives in Sydney, Australia, and Bolivia.

"I have no desire to add to my burdens a lot of wealth that would bring me no satisfaction," he said. "I am by no means rich, but I have enough worldly goods for my physical needs. Give to my poor relatives who need it."

Father Graham was notified several days ago by the authorities of Sydney that unless he had died there, leaving estates valued at millions of dollars, and that investigation had shown him to be the nearest relative and sole heir.

Daughters of Old Aristocracy Now Pass Lean Years

"Baxter Girls," Once Wealthy, See Wolf at Door.

ONE AT INFIRMARY

Out at the county infirmary in Oak Forest there sits a whitened old lady who smiles as the days fly by. She is without regard for time and without thought of the passing through which dropped her by the way, for her mind is blank. She is Emma Baxter.

Out at 1426 West Madison street, in a tiny room at the top of a richly decorated stair, there sits another whitened old lady of similar type. She is alone with her memories, rocking. She is Elizabeth Baxter.

These two sisters, both past their four-score years, are all that is left of a family once known for its culture and its wealth.

And Here It Begins.

Old Tom Baxter, as "Tom the First" was called, came of sturdy Irish stock. In Dublin, his home, he was the head of a manufacturing company which had contracts for furnishing the English army with a large share of its accoutrements.

But fortune frowned and he lost much of his wealth, and rather than stay to face the mockery, Tom Baxter, with his wife and four children, "Tom the Second," Charlotte, Elizabeth, and Emma, came to America. They lived first on Staten Island, then came to Chicago.

It was a wise move for "Old Tom," for here in the new west-it was before the war—were found new opportunities and incidentally a new fortune. Thomas Baxter & Son, on Canal street, was one of the big manufacturing concerns of Chicago. It furnished mill supplies for hundreds of industries.

Still Recall Reminiscences.

Early day Chicagoans still recall the Baxter residences, first on Fulton street, then on West Adams street. Some few may remember dinners at which "Old Tom" Baxter presided, and at which Bishop Whitehouse, of the cathedral of St. Peter and Paul, on the west side, was invariably a guest.

Meanwhile the Baxter girls were emerging into womanhood. Emma was musical and Elizabeth of artistic bent.

Although both were considered "belles" of their day, Mrs. Thomas Baxter, the mother, frowned upon matrimony, and only two of the four ever married.

One Became Countess.

Charlotte became the wife of a German count and lived on Hockley street. She is now dead. Margaret, youngest of the sisters, married unfortunately, was separated, and later loved and lost again—at last, she was still living—a companion to a wealthy farmer's wife somewhere in Wisconsin.

Elizabeth was engaged to marry a no-bieman, but abandoned her romance at her mother's behest, and with Emma, remained in the old residence.

Then the story of Ireland was repeated. Reverses came until "the Baxter wealth" crumbled to a fraction of its one time bulk. Old Tom Baxter died, and "Tom the second" followed a few years later. "Little Tom," as the third of the family was called, killed himself when he lost what money he had in a Chicago bank failure.

CITY CHARGED WITH FAVORING CHURCH SCHOOLS

Complaint of Discrimination to Be Brought Before Senate Committee.

COUNCIL ACTION IS CITED.

Discrimination on the part of the city in favor of sectarian schools as against the Chicago public schools, is a new charge which will be called to the attention of the Baldwin senate committee which is now investigating Chicago schools.

In summarized form, the basis upon which rests the charge of discrimination follows:

First—Building permits must be taken out and paid for before the construction work can be begun on any public school building.

Second—A suit for $2,500 in uncollected fees for the annual inspection of public school buildings is now pending before the courts. This suit was filed by the corporation counsel at the direction of the city council against the school board.

Third—The Chicago public schools are compelled to pay the city for the installation of water-service pipes from the mains to the school buildings.

On the Other Hand.

In contrast to these facts, the following will be presented before the senate committee:

First—At frequent intervals the city council instructs the building commissioner to issue, without charge, building permits for the construction of sectarian schools.

Second—On Nov. 11, 1911, the council directed the city controller to cancel all warrants for building inspection fees at that time held for collection against religious, charitable, and educational institutions (not including the public schools), and on Dec. 11 of the same year this amendment was added to paragraph 237 of the code of 1911 with respect to building inspection fees: "Provided, however, that no charge for such annual inspection shall be made against religious, charitable, or educational institutions."

Third—On a number of occasions the city council has passed measures directing the commissioner of public works to install, without charge, water service pipes from the city mains to sectarian school buildings.

Expected to Be Called.

"It has been pointed out by hundreds that the school system is in many respects a failure," Mr. Stein said. "It fails, some say, to produce the highest type of citizens, and many economic and social problems which the community faces are held to be the result of antiquated educational methods. The committee has been told that the health and physical development of pupils is not properly looked after. So, we shall summon experts in this field, among them Dr. W. A. Evans of THE TRIBUNE, Dr. A. J. Ochener, Health Commissioner John Dill Robertson, and Frank A. Crosby, secretary of the boy's work department of the Y. M. C. A."

"If any one is hurt during this investigation, it will be considered by the committee a matter for regret. This is not a persecuting or a censoring body. It is an earnest and sincere effort on the part of the state senate to learn the truth."

Mrs. George P. Vosbrink, member of the board of education, is expected to be the first witness when the committee assumes the hearing at the Hotel La Salle this afternoon at 1:30.

EDDIE THE IMMUNE IN JAIL? NO. LOOKING FOR DOUBLE!

Elusive Confidence Man, Freed on Bail by Judge Pettit, Seeks by New Scheme to Escape Prison.

A man bearing a strong resemblance to Eddie Hall (Eddie the Immune) confidence man, was seen on the street yesterday. Those who recognized him as that at last report Hall was on a charge of swindling a Canadian prospector on the third corner penny matching game, Frank Harper of Saskatchewan, the victim, was lured to the lake front "to see a modern submarine." Then he was freed.

Former Judge Adeler J. Pettit, before whom Hall was to have been tried was communicated with.

"Hall is at liberty on $2,000 bail," he said. He is searching for his double. When he was brought before me he pleaded that it must have been some man who bore a strong resemblance to him who had been swindling people. I was impressed and continued the hearing to give him a chance to find the man."

Zigzagging Machine Stages Stunt at State and Monroe—Driver and Wife Arrested.

Around the corner of Michigan avenue and Monroe street the automobile pivoted, dislocating from its base a street name sign post.

"Hey, stop!" yelled a policeman. The car didn't stop. It zigzagged from side to side of Monroe street like a line on a barometer.

At the northeast corner of Monroe and State streets it signed across a sidewalk and knocked a hole in a dry goods store window. It stopped.

Harry W. Lee, 29 East Twenty-second street, mechanic for the Wells Fargo Express company, the driver of the car, was booked for operating an automobile while intoxicated. His wife, who was with him, was charged with disorderly conduct.

Miss Illington Plays "The Lie"

"THE LIE."
A play by Henry Arthur Jones. Presented in Chicago at the Court Theatre, Aug. 8, 1910, by Miss Margaret Illington.

BY PERCY HAMMOND.
SINCE Miss Margaret Illington is better known to the neighborhood than Mr. Henry Arthur Jones, it is perhaps the duty of a reviewer of plays to write about the actress rather than the play. The Lie is a play of the type of "The Lie" as played last evening at the Court Theatre.

Therefore it will be said at once that with her performance in this good story she takes her place among the actresses who count. I am, perhaps, tardy in making the discovery that Miss Illington counts. Others in vast numbers have been announcing it for years, but I seem to have been as blind as an Egyptian in my ignorance of it. It is, of course, the character of the play that is the chief reason for its success. "The Lie" is a play of the type of "The Lie" as played last evening at the Court Theatre.

It is Miss Illington's function in "The Lie" to impersonate the unattractive, patient, granddaughter of a fortune teller and a fortune teller in decay. The character's design calls for her to suffer not merely but with spirit, to struggle courageously against the forces of evil and penury, until she is put down by the revelation that her sister, evil, heartless, and worldly, is in a woman's trouble. So she surrenders her chance for a happy life and her appointment with Gerald, the rich engineer, with a reluctant sigh to a life of poverty and a life of poverty.

These self-sacrificed ladies of the drama are usually a bit too noble to be true, but you will find Miss Illington going about the business of impersonation quite credibly. She gives up her half dress, her mother's jewels, and her appointment with Gerald, the rich engineer, with a reluctant sigh to a life of poverty and a life of poverty.

David Warfield, after many protestations that he would not, is to be an actor for the films. The play is not to be from his familiar and meager repertoire, but a work specially written for the occasion.

Onwentsia Tennis

THE galleries at Onwentsia's tennis tournament on Saturday brought out the most representative group of fashionable folk that has assembled at the club in several weeks, for the day was a brilliant one, and the excitement of the match and the fact that the tables on the veranda were a setting for many merry parties, an interesting group waited for a chance to step into their motor cars.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hildbrand were there with their children, Frank G. and Lydia, looking lovely in white, with her long golden curls covered by a blue picture hat. Her brother, though hardly above her small shoulders, wore immaculate long white trousers and the blue serge coat of the country clubman. They left the club in their deep red touring car for the station and "Mother Hubbard's" for dinner later in the evening.

Miss Lolita Armour was there in a white gown with a pink silk sweater and a wide brimmed pink taffeta hat, bearing a party of friends back to dine with her at Melody farm in her green touring car.

Miss Isabelle McBirney, her fiancé, Henry Blumson of New York, and her mother, Mrs. H. H. McBirney, were there. Miss McBirney wearing a becoming hat of midnight blue, with transparent trim and an apricot sweater over her white gown.

Mrs. John A. Stevenson was among those who braved the first shower to watch Miss Adelt and Miss Tuttle make a few more fine strokes, and all about her were interested friends declaring: "There goes a 450 hat—just look at that lovely gown—"

She wore a gown of pale pink chiffon with a pink wool sweater and a lace hat trimmed in pink roses.

Others witnessing the match were Mrs. A. A. Sprague, Mrs. A. Watson Arbuthnot, Mrs. Harold Bryant, Mrs. W. J. Chalmers, Honore Palmer, Miss Ethel Harman, Miss Carol Dunham, Miss Helen and Sarah Farrell, Miss Margaret Thompson, Otto Chaffin-Taylor, Miss Alice Cuddey, Mrs. Edward I. Cuddey, Mrs. Thomas Prindiville, Mrs. John de Koven Bowen, Mrs. Donald Ryerson, Mrs. Arthur T. Aldin, Robert McGinnis, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Mrs. George McKinnick, Mrs. Charles Holt, Miss Isabelle Holt, Mrs. Prentiss Cooley, Mrs. Francis Johnston, Mrs. Ray Atherton, Mrs. Leda Mitchell, Mrs. Julia Keith, Miss Edith Hoyt, Mrs. Green Smith, Mrs. J. Allen Haines, and Mrs. Willard S. Gaylord.

The tournament will be continued this morning at 11 o'clock.

An interesting note from Honolulu society says that Mrs. Walter Dillingham headed a subscription dinner for "Polo Night" at the Helix Tavern, which is one of the largest affairs of the season and includes all the members of the visiting polo teams, as well as the members of the Oahu team and the Army organization.

Mr. and Mrs. Dillingham entertained a number of the polo players and their wives and other friends at the Japanese gardens at Kalahele on Sunday, the feature of the day being swimming and luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. John Henry of 3221 Monroe street announce the marriage of their daughter, Margaret Hamilton, to Dr. Harry Parker Knapp, 2745 West Jackson from $100 to $150.

Lydia Lopokova, the Russian dancer, is to try again next season to succeed as an actress in England.

The collaboration of the Hattens and Leo Dittichstein on a new play for the latter's use, "Jean Pauline," is a matter of Dittichstein's plot and the Chicagoans' dialogue.

Stock in the new Triangle Film corporation, capitalized at $5,000,000 for the 1,000 shares, has been listed in the New York stock market at 85 a share.
